FRENCH ADMIT FALL OF 2 CITIES

Reynaud Bares Costly Errors as Troops Retreat

Failure to Blow up Meuse Bridges as Army Fell Back 'to be Punished', Premier Promises; Germans Sight Eiffel Tower.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—Intense anti-aircraft fire off the southeast coast of England was heard twice this afternoon, mingled with the drone of airplane engines high overhead.

(By International News Service)

PARIS—Admitting that "incredible mistakes have been made," Premier Paul Reynaud told the French senate today that German troops have occupied the important cities of Amiens and Arras in northwestern France.

The mistakes, which included failure to blow up the bridges across the Meuse river and thus prevent advance German columns from being reinforced by mass supplementary divisions, "will be punished," Reynaud said.

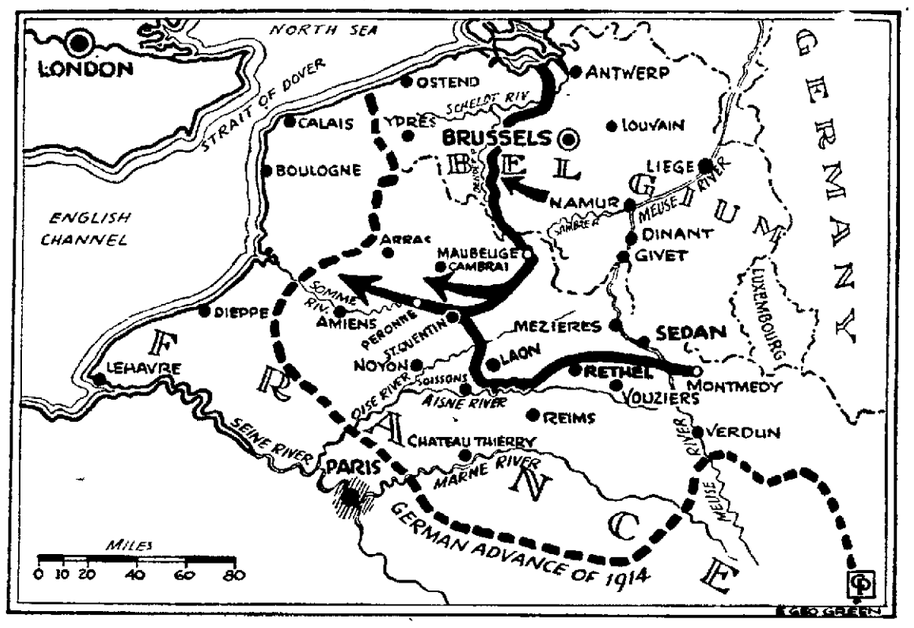

(Editor's Note: Reynaud's frank admission of "mistakes" which contributed to the terrific Allied setbacks on the western front and gave the Nazis a thrusting point across the English channel aroused immediate speculation as to possible activities of "fifth columnists" within France itself. It was recalled that similar military "oversights" enabled Germany's rapid occupation of Denmark, Norway and Holland.)

"France and England cannot be beaten—they cannot die," Reynaud said

"If I were told that a miracle is needed to save France, I would say 'I am a believer in miracles.'

How German Army Drives Toward Channel

This map shows how the German army, after driving a deep salient into the Allied defense lines in the direction of Paris, has changed the direction of its attack, veering toward the English channel. The Germans claimed today to have reached Abbeville, at the mouth of the Somme river, after "the most terrific offensive of all time" but the Allies admitted only the fall of Arras and Amiens, both inland from Abbeville.

Hitler Confers With West Front Officers

Keeping in direct touch with the fortunes of his attacking German army, Adolf Hitler, left, is pictured in this Berlin radiophoto at his headquarters "somewhere in Belgium or Germany" as he listened to a report from Adjutant Colonel Schmundt, extreme right. Field Marshal Hermann Goering, wearing white cap, may be seen standing next to Schmundt.

Plane Builders Meet With U. S. Officials

More than 40 representatives of aircraft companies, who met with government officials in Washington to discuss President Roosevelt's plans to give the United States 50,000 military airplanes, pledged their co-operation in the new U. CONGRESS FORGES AHEAD

Senate Considering Army Bill, Expected to Pass It By End of Week.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The government pledged full credit backing today to American industry enlisting in the national defense drive, while administration leaders tackled the job of financing the huge preparedness program.

Without slackening speed, congress forged ahead with legislation that would give the industrial machine the 'go-ahead" to turn dollars into tanks, warplanes and fighting ships.

The senate called up for debate the unprecedented peacetime army bill of $1,820,841,000, and the general expectation was that it would be on President Roosevelt's desk by the weekend. In the house, committees were hard at work on both army and navy expansion.

Jesse Jones, federal loan administrator, called on the country's banks to furnish "the fullest cooperation," and said that the RFC stood ready either to take up 75 per cent of loans secured in connection with the defense program, or to underwrite them up to that amount, leaving the banks to carry the other 25 per cent.

Simultaneously, there were signs that the administration was reconsidering its decision to defer the question of financing until the next session of congress.

Indications were that congress soon might receive a request to increase the $45,000,000,000 federal debt limit—possibly by $1,000,000,000. The debt now is approaching $43,000,000,000.

The alternative of new taxes at the present session was largely discounted, because of the desire for adjournment in advance of the national political conventions.

Contrary to original expectations, the RFC offer of credit help on defense orders appeared most likely to benefit small business.

The aircraft industry, key unit in preparedness plans, served notice that it had ample capital to finance the expansion necessary to step up plane production to the

Terrific Drive Traps Million Troops, Claim

Abbeville, Amiens and Arras Taken by Nazi Blitzkrieg; French General And Staff Reported Captured; French Army 'Crushed.'

BULLETIN

NEW YORK—(INS)—The French radio flatly denied that the ninth army has been wiped out and that General Henri Giraud has been taken prisoner, in a broadcast picked up here today.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(UP)—The long awaited counter-attack on Germans in northern France has started, and "The French are fighting magnificently," British military sources said today. The French were reported counter-attacking in the "bulge" area—the whole theater of war in northern France formed by the German attempt to advance in all directions from Sedan to the English channel.

(By United Press)

BERLIN—The high command said today that Adolf Hitler's blitzkrieg had smashed through to the English channel in "the greatest attack operations of all times" and had cut off all Allied troops in northern France and Belgium.

Nazis claim that about 1,000,000 Allied troops had been isolated in Flanders and were in greatest peril after defeat of the French 9th army and capture of its staff, including General Henri Giraud, who last Saturday was placed in command of the main Allied defenses along the "bulge" front.

But the 60-mile break-through at lightning speed to the channel port of Abbeville, only 70 miles across the water from the historic English town of Hastings, was merely the outstanding of a series of gains claimed by the high command.

Comments J. C. Oestricher, foreign editor of International News Service: " . . . This war has taught us that, the official German communiques, issued under the seal of the Nazi high command, are generally trustworthy. Sometimes they exaggerate to the extent of calling a destroyer a cruiser or a cruiser a battleship. But in general, the main points of military strategy contained in the announcements are worthy of belief."

These included:

(Abbeville is 12 miles from the outer fringe of English channel coast. It is on the Somme, built partly on an island and partly on both sides of the river, which is canalized from this point to the estuary.)

1. The French 9th army, operating on the Meuse river front between Sedan and Namur—the main fighting front in northern France—has been beaten and is in dissolution and its commander, Gen. Henri Giraud, as well as his staff, have been taken prisoner.

2. The French towns of Arras, Amiens, and Abbeville (all highly important communications centers in the north) were taken by German motorized troops which slashed their way with amazing speed to the channel in order to speed up establishment of bases from which a blitzkrieg could be launched against England.

3. German columns, led by the air force "which played an outstanding role," captured the French town of Rethel, on the Aisne river some 70 miles from Paris.

4. German forces pushing through Belgium in pursuit of the retiring British army engaged in battle with the enemy east of Ghent and farther southwards on the Scheldt river.

The high command communique was the most sensational issued in 11 days of blitzkrieg warfare through the low countries and in northern France, because, if confirmed, it seemed to mean that all resistance had been shattered along the French defense lines and that the British expeditionary force was in greatest danger of destruction.

The British, Belgians and many French troops, ac-

TRAGEDY: Reporter Writes Story of Levelled Louvain

By FREDERICK C. OESCHNER
(UP Staff Correspondent)

WITH THE GERMAN ARMY IN BELGIUM—Famished dogs, left behind by their women and children owners in a panic flight, raced crazily about the streets of Louvain today, past the smouldering ruins of the beautiful library which America rebuilt after the World war.

Tongues lolling, the dogs raced aimlessly, nosed for food and water, and raced on again. German soldiers adopted some of them; the rest were left to themselves.

Louvain is the most shot up town I have seen in this or the Polish war. Whole blocks have been laid waste by the joint action of German Stuka dive bombing planes and artillery.

Tracks at the railroad station were like pretzels, and we were warned by the commandant that the tracks were still mined and that we should take care where we stepped.

Hand grenades left by the British were lying about the fountain in the market square. The Avenue De Tirelemont, one of the main residential boulevards, was ghastly. It seemed as if every house had been struck by grenades or artillery.

Apparently every one of Louvain's remaining 41,000 people had evacuated before the Germans arrived. The German commandant told us that when he arrived Saturday morning he found the city deserted and that he took it over with a small official staff.

The historic town hall and the Cathedral had suffered little damage. Some university buildings were damaged. But the famous library had been ruined by fire. Its walls still smouldered.

TENSER: Italy Gives More Evidence of Entering War

(By Associated Press)

ROME—Italy, Germany's non-belligerent ally, appeared today to be preparing to enter the war as she ordered blackouts and air raid drills in her chief industrial areas for a three-day test beginning tonight.

Speeches of Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano in Milan and Cremona, in which he said that Italy awaits only the order of the day" from Premier Mussolini "when he will decide upon it," increased the feeling among Italians that they might be called shortly to fight.

Diplomatic circles attached significance to an article by Giovanni Ansaldo, editor of Count Ciano's newspaper Il Telegrafo, asserting "the hour is near when our influence on the course of events must be more active."

He declared that, although Britain and France undoubtedly would react differently now to Italian territorial claims than they did 18 months ago, it would be "too late."

Telephone connections between Rome and London, meanwhile remained suspended.

The possibility of Italy's entrance into the conflict in the immediate future was indicated further by the air raid drills, which were the first ordered since the opening days of the war last September.

Demonstrations continued against Britain and France which brought out troops and carabinieri. A shouting group of young Italians marched toward the British consulate, but was held back by helmeted soldiers who appeared suddenly.

BOARD HIRES 227 TEACHERS

122 School Instructors Get Pay Increases Totaling $11,000 at Session.

The Mansfield board of education last night gave contracts to 227 principals, supervisors, and teachers for 1940-41 and granted 122 of them salary increases totaling approximately $11,000.

The pay boosts were increments ranging from $35 to $150, designed to bring more of the salaries up to the maximum set by the board several years ago. The maximum for high school teachers is $2,100 a year, for

Expect Fall of Vital Station on Narvik Railway

STOCKHOLM — (UP) — Norwegian reports from the Narvik front said today that the fall of Bjornefjell station, on the railroad line running to the Swedish frontier, was imminent and that the position of the beleaguered German garrison at Narvik was untenable.

With the fall of Bjornefjell, all hope of sending supplies to the Narvik garrison from Sweden would end Norwegian and Allied forces were closing in on the valuable iron ore port, dispatches said.

Reports from northern Norway aggravated the war tension in Sweden but the department of information here announced that Sweden was arming for defense against any involvement.

Iron Lunger Says He's About To Become a Father

CHICAGO—(UP)— Frederick D. Snite, sr., wealthy loan company executive, said today his son, the "Boiler Kid" who has lived four years in "iron lungs," would return with his wife from Florida next month to await a baby in September.

Young Frederick, 29, has been confined to the iron lung since he was stricken with paralysis April 1, 1936, while in China on a world cruise.

Recently he has spent as much as three hours outside the big boiler" and even is able to breath without mechanical assistance for several minutes.

He married Teresa Larkin, 27, Dayton, O., last Aug. 10 after more than two years of secret courtship.

Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the American Medical Association Journal said there was "no reason to believe that the baby will not be perfectly normal."

Charge $130,000 Coal Fraud In Cleveland Purchases

CITE CHANGES IN REPORTS ON FUEL QUALITY

Examiners Say Combustion Engineer Admits Taking Bribes From Dealers.

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND — Charges that the City of Cleveland was cheated out of $130,000 in coal purchases between June 1931 and February 1937 were contained in a 1,100-page state examiners' report released today.

The report, largely the work of Examiner Stephen A. Ryan, working under the supervision of State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson and the late Will Heck, chief examiner for the Cleveland district, charges bribery, political conniving and destruction and alteration of public records.

According to the report, John L. Abbott, city combustion engineer during most of the period covered, accepted $19,239 from officials of 11 coal companies for altering reports on the quality of coal sold the city.

The same companies, the report stated, overcharged the city $74,549 that could be traced, and there probably was as much as $60,000 in overpayments by the city that could not be revealed because of destruction of records. Ten of the companies have repaid $68,842 of the $74,549.

The report has been turned over to County Prosecutor Frank T. Cullitan for possible grand jury action. It covers a period running through the administrations of City Manager Daniel E. Morgan, Mayors Ray T. Miller, Harry L. Davis and the incumbent, Harold H. Burton. None of the chief officials was implicated in the report, however.

Abbott, the report stated, has confessed receiving money from the coal companies and altering reports as to the quality of coal. He was combustion engineer all during the period covered except for a short time in the Miller administration. He finally resigned under pressure from Burton in April 1938.

The report charged also that the coal companies involved retained attorneys who supposedly had political connections in city hall in efforts to increase city business.

The companies named in the report were: Costanzo Coal Mining Co., Wheeling, W. Va.; Karcher Coal & Supply Co., Cleveland; Frank J. Piryzek, Cleveland; Pittsburgh & Ohio Coal Mining Co., Cleveland; Valley Camp Coal Co., Cleveland; Harris Coal Co., Cleveland; Technicoal Sales Co., Cleveland; Vulcan Coal Co., Cleveland; Denison Coal & Supply Co., Cleveland; Lake Shore Builders Supply Co., Cleveland, and Tasa Coal Co., Pittsburgh.

All but Pittsburgh & Ohio and Tasa have repaid findings against them in full. Pittsburgh & Ohio has repaid $4,526 of $5,715, while Tasa has repaid nothing, according to the report.

She'll Receive Diploma at Age Of 87 at Plymouth

PLYMOUTH — Miss Eva E. White, 87, resident at the Elyria home for the aged, will receive her high school diploma Friday night, 70 years late, at Plymouth.

She was one of three girls to complete high school work at Plymouth in 1870. The three were scheduled to be graduated as the school's first graduating class, but Superintendent William Gunsaulius died just before the end of the year and the commencement was never held.

Now Miss White will come back to Plymouth, at the invitation of E. L. Bailey, school superintendent, to receive her diploma along with members of this year's class.

Bittinger, Schorr Slated as Party Heads

Up and Down THE STREET

Corp. Byron J. Hoffer, Mansfield man with the 19th Field Artillery which is temporarily located at Camp Beauregard, La., discovered another Mansfield. It is Mansfield, La., a town of about 4,000 population. And in Alexandria, La., he saw a number of business places that were reminiscent of his home town—such as the Ritz theater, the Citizens National bank Central Drug store, Southern hotel, Silver Slipper cafe, a Pastime pool room and a Service Taxi company.

The weekly magazine, "This Week," distributed to several million homes through Sunday newspapers, carried a Mansfield story last Sunday. It was on the Safety Town being conducted every summer on city playgrounds. A picture and a story told of how Safety Town is set up in miniature streets, with a regular traffic signal and miniature autos which are operated by children of pre-school age.

One of those little misunderstandings that frequently get a laugh in "The Old Home Town" cartoon bobbed up at last night's board of education meeting. Asked by Supt. W. L. Miller if he would present the diplomas at commencement exercises June 6, Dr. John S. Hattery, board vice president, replied in a low voice and President Harold Arlin didn't hear him. "What did he say, yes or no?" Arlin asked. "He said he had no particular objections." Supt Miller replied. "You're pretty close." Dr. Hattery explained. "I said, "All right, if I'm still alive and kicking."

STUDENTS 'RUN' STORE FOR DAY

Senior High Salesmanship Class to Get Chance at Actual Selling.

Thirty-eight Senior high school retail salesmanship students tomorrow will take over complete operation of the W. T. Grant company store here, culminating their semester's work in salesmanship training.

The students will fill every position in the store from manager down, giving the regular store employes a day's holiday, according to W. S. Tuttle, manager.

It gives the students an opportunity to gain actual selling experience, John C. Stout, salesmanship teacher, said.

The school receives two per cent of the gross sales for the day, according to Tuttle. The money will go to the commercial department to be used to purchase additional equipment.

Replacing Tuttle as manager for the day will be Harry Massa, a 12-A student. George Zerby of the 11-A class will act as assistant manager, and Jane Rizer and Dorothy Swendal as floor girls.

Others assigned to work are Donna Draves, Betty White, Ruth Ute, Charles Magee, Helen Damlos, Betty Frye, Ruth Titschinger, June Eberele, Eva Dorner, Mary Stevens, David Prion, Genevieve Filipelli, Margie White, Robert McDonough, Junior Garrison, Maxine Zimmerman, Juanita Oswalt, Loretta Harden, Helen Underwood, Mary Longsdorf, Eva Yankovich, Mary Miller, Betty Kimes, Esther Grauer, Margaret First, William Warden, Rex Collins, George Gazdak, Mary Burkholder, Richard Collins, Juanita Kuhn, Peggy Long, Robert Mabee and Marjorie Ritchie.

RESIGNS POST

Violet Richardson, Y. W. C. A. Secretary, to Leave Mansfield.

Miss Violet Richardson, group work secretary of the Y. W. C. A. for the past two years, will leave Mansfield the last of this month. She submitted her resignation to the Y. W. board at its regular meeting last night.

Miss Richardson told board members that she was resigning to be married early in the summer. She will leave here Decoration day and go to her home in Redding, Mass., where early in July she will marry Ernest R. Siefkin, Burbank, Cal. They will make their home in California.

Miss Richardson has been in charge of Girl Reserves and other groups.

BOARD PAYS $24,194 MORE ON COST OF TWO NEW SCHOOLS

With work on the city's two new junior high schools nearly completed, the Mansfield board of education last night authorized further payments amounting to $24,194 to more than a dozen contractors, but withheld the money due five of them because their work has not been finished.

The board specified in letters to the contractors that they will receive the rest of their money when their contracts have been fulfilled.

The board will not be able to make final payments to all the contractors until it receives the $100,000 in PWA funds still due from the federal government. It will request the money immediately. The federal government already has provided $350,000 which, with a $550,000 bond issue and the $100,000 still due, financed the million dollar building program.

Permission was granted the Mansfield Y. W. C. A. last night to use the swimming pool at Senior high school for swim classes during the last three weeks of June. The Y. W. C. A. will be required only to pay for the water used and the janitor service.

J. Merton Holcombe, band supervisor in the schools, was granted a $150 pay increase for the present school term to cover summer work with the band, including rehearsals, lessons for band members, and directing open-air concerts.

SIX ENLIST

Youths From District Enroll In Navy; May Quota Filled.

Six men from this district enlisted in the United States navy, through the district recruiting office in Sandusky, W. G. Cox, chief electrician and recruiting officer, announced here today. Cox was in Mansfield to recruit further enlistments at the postoffice. He will also be here tomorrow.

The district filled its May quota, which was 60 men, Cox said. Although the June quota has not been announced, he said he expects it will be larger. The navy enlistment slogan is now "Join the Navy and Earn while you Learn."

Cox will also be in Mansfield to recruit new men June 18 and 19.

The six from the district who enlisted during the May period are David C. Walker, Mansfield; Carl Bunt, Savannah; Grover Rotruck, Willard; Alfred Nardecchia, Norwalk, and Linus Harp and LeRoy Dunham, Sandusky.

MEET TONIGHT

County Business Representatives To Stury Government Service.

A meeting of the Richland county district council, comprised of business representatives throughout the county will be held tonight in the Chamber of Comerce assembly rooms.

The session has been called by E. H. Brown, chairman of the group, who said that Arch D. Schultz, director of the research department of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, will present comparative figures relative to the cost of city and county service with those of other cities and counties of comparable size in Ohio.

DAVEY INSISTS ON NAMING OF ASHLAND MAN

Burton Reports 'No Action' After Conferring With GOP Commiteeman.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, O.—The job of master-minding Ohio Democrats' battle to regain control of the state administration probably will go to J. Freer Bittinger of Ashland.

Bittinger has commanded the Columbus division of Martin L. Davey's political organization ever since the Kent tree surgeon was defeated for renomination in 1938.

Now that the Democrats have nominated Davey for governor again, he is reported to be insisting upon Bittinger's selection as chairman of the party's state executive committee.

Informed sources said today that Davey had won enough support from members of the newly elected state central committee to assure Bittinger's appointment as chairman when the 44-member body meets next Monday or Tuesday to set up the executive committee.

Bittinger would succeed Chairman Arthur L. Limbach of New Philadelphia. It was reliably reported that Albert A. Horstman of Dayton will be elected chairman of the central committee, succeeding Earl H. Hanefeld of Ottawa.

Bittinger, an accountant, was elected to the Ohio house of representatives in 1928 and served four terms. He was speaker in 1935-36.

He made an unsuccessful bid for the lieutenant governor nomination in 1936, and later was given a position in the governor's office.

Democratic nominees for state office will confer with Davey at Kent on Thursday.

Meanwhile, the newly elected Republican state central committee will meet here tomorrow, and it appeared that State Chairman Ed D. Schorr would be reelected state chairman without serious opposition.

Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland, Republican nominee for U. S. senator, conferred with Cleveland's six members of the committee but reported "we took no action."

EX-PASTOR DIES

Rev. A. W. Manning, 68, of Galion, Stricken In Columbus.

GALION—Rev. A. W. Manning, 68, of Cherry street, a retired Methodist minister, died Monday evening in White Cross hospital, Columbus. He had been in ill health for a number of years and bedfast the past three months.

Born Jan. 18, 1872, in Wapakoneta, Rev. Manning had served in the active ministry of the Methodist Episcopal church for 30 years, retiring 10 years ago. He was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan university in 1898. He never held a pastorate in Galion.

Surviving are his wife Ruby; five daughters, Betty and Mary at home, and Mrs. K. E. Murphy, Mrs. D. McVicker and Mrs. H. Rensch all of Galion; three sons, Samuel at home, W. R. Manning of Zanesville and Robert of Galion; four sisters, two brothers and seven grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday at the First Methodist church here with Rev. W. N. Robertson officiating. Burial will be in Fairview cemetery. Friends may call at the family home after 7:30 p. m. today and until noon Wednesday. The body will be taken to the church Thursday noon.

GREENLUN FILES IN HIGH COURT

Road Marking Superintendent In New Fight for Back Pay.

Robert L. Greenlun, Ashland, division superintendent of route marking in the state highway department, sought reimbursement of about eight months' salary he lost as the result of his dismissal from the state payroll last year.

In an appeal to the Ohio supreme court, Greenlun asked the high court to reconsider a previous ruling which denied him the pay.

Greenlun was discharged late in the Davey administration and reinstated last August. The back pay he seeks covers the period he was out of work.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Excerpts From Miss Midnight's Diary.

Even the playboys must have done a little staying home last week, for there was many a glamor-puss missing from the bistros—and those who did stroll around to the rhumba places might as well have been by their firesides, for they issued war bulletins as frequently and regularly as an NBC announcer.

The talk at tables has shifted sharply now from the who's-that-with Brenda variety to dialogue that regularly incorporates the words "Belgium," "Roosevelt," "Hitler" and "England." Where the music plays, fewer people dance.

All this is hardly conducive to concentrating on the flippancies of Broadway tattle. When the bombs are falling and men and their freedom are dying, it is difficult to care whether Vivien Leigh congas.

* * *

But apparently she doesn't. Or possibly Lawrence Olivier doesn't, which would add up to the same thing at this point in their romance. The famous team dropped in at LaConga the other night, elicited the lowest bow executed by a headwaiter in these parts since Marlene Dietrich stopped going to the Ritz, and were ushered to a ringside table. There they sat, watching the rhumba jumpers and the conga line, watching Wallace Beery shaking his hips to the Latin rhythms, watching Brenda and Shipwreck Kelly, Betty Grable and her beau—but Romeo and Juliet didn't rise to the parquet. With them, I guess, it's a Veronese minuet, or nothing.

The gentleman lassoing spaghetti at Bill Bertolotti's Monday evening was Hoot Gibson, of the hoss epics. The dark-haired gentleman with the naive face, whom he went over to greet, was Mr. Babe Ruth of the baseball diamonds. Babe, who is also a very swift man with a knife and fork, was with Mrs. Babe.

I suppose, after George M. Cohan's decades of unquestioned popularity with theater audiences, this is no time for me to come along and complain about him, but if any honesty is to be preserved in these parts I must say I am not amused. I sat from the rising curtain of "The Return Of The Vagabond" until the bitter end. Far more interesting were Mrs. Otto Preminger and Hope Hampton, who enlivened the audience, if only for their sartorial effects.

Mrs. Preminger wore real mirrors (roccoco, edged with diamonds) hung around her neck and clipped to her decolletage; Miss Hampton had her fingers bandaged in tourquoise crepe de chine, and a hole cut in the front of her dress to show her tummy.

Some of the crowd from the premiere drifted over to the Algonquin, where the lobby and supper club swarmed with Harvard boys, Mary Pickford, Richard Aldrich, Elaine Barrie, Stella Adler and Carl Van Vechten, and Sigmund Spaeth, the tune detective, was taking up what Frank Case quipped to be considerable spaeth.

Sam Raphaelson was telling Walter Huston, who has adopted the place as something of a hangout, that he was becoming a nightly attraction.

"I know," replied Huston, "especially when I don't sing."

Passersby glancing at the Rockefeller Plaza rink on Tuesday saw two kids whose faces certainly looked familiar gliding around on roller skates. They were two girls who were practicing for the American Theater Wing's party on May 27, when they will compete with two boys named Bert Lahr and Walter Huston in a potato race. Ruth Gordon, one of them, the other, Helen Hayes.

Later in the evening the Hurricane, which features a tropical storm to give the club that native effect, was visited by Diosa Costello and Betty Hutton, representing the Latin and Nordic types of jitterbugs, and from that moment on no lightning or thunder effects were needed.

Both the diminutive belles got out on the dance floor, both rhumba'd with their partners, and there was nothing left to do but turn on the cooling system.

Over at the bar, where the battle-talk was thickest, a tall blond fellow with a deep sunburn interrupted an argument with unusual vehemence.

"Some of you fellows," he said, "wouldn't be anxious to fight if you knew what it was like."

The tall sunburned fellow was Harold Dahl, the American aviator who was captured and imprisoned in Spain.

The roadside season got off to its start Wednesday night when the Glen Island Casino, birthplace of so many big bands (last year it was Glenn Miller, remember, and look at him now) opened with Bobby Byrne's band. Bobby, if I recall correctly, is the young lad who got his big break when the Dorsey brothers split and Jimmy Dorsey put Bobby in at Tommy's position on the trombone. Now he's on the way to becoming a heavy juke-box favorite.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — "Four Sons" is a story of a family caught in the Nazi invasion of Czechoslovakia, in the Sudetenland in particular.

The family gets torn to pieces pretty effectively, if you can judge by a scene I saw involving Don Ameche, George Ernest and Mary Beth Hughes. Ameche, badly wounded and covered with mud and blood, has been hiding out in a straw-littered barn, and the blonde Mary Beth is answering his question as to what has happened to another brother.

"He was shot down in the swamp — you killed him!" she mutters. Ameche, held up by Ernest, is overcome.

Of such strong stuff is "Four Sons" made, with Eugenie Leontovich, in her picture debut, as the old mother who is the real star.

I talked to Director Archie Mayo, who is sure Leontovich will be "grand." I asked him if his story would not be another sweet piece of propaganda. He said with emotion:

"If we admit that there is a Germany, and there was a Czechoslovakia and we admit that Germany took Czechoslovakia all of which is simply history, and if what went on there stirs up an emotional sympathy, then yes, this is propaganda. Otherwise it is a good, human story of real people in a crisis and what happens to them."

* * *

Archie was touring in Czechoslovakia when the deed was done, he was in Munich during the momentous conferences that led to the republic's dismemberment; he was in London when the man with the umbrella returned, waving a piece of paper and crying of peace-in-our-time.

"Four Sons" has a companion piece in a sense in Metro's "The Mortal Storm," likewise a study of a family disrupted by Nazi influence. There'll be a race to get the rival films to the marquees first — but "The Mortal Storm" won't be propaganda, either. I have Director Frank Borzage's word for that, in virtually the same words as Director Archie Mayo used. But I'm sure neither of them is counting on a world premiere in Berlin.

Just a visit to the "Four Sons" farmhouse set is a revelation of the power of inanimate objects to stir emotion. Here is quaintness and charm and sweetness, a "feel" of good people living simple, useful lives before they were shaken into fear and insecurity. The "feel" is in the well-worn tile floor of the parlor, with its big square stove, its center table covered in turkey-red, its rows of pottery ornaments, its colorful beer steins, its chairs and its whole rustic simplicity.

* * *

Here is a room where good people lived in peace, and outside, in the yard near the barn, a tense girl is telling a weary young man: "You killed him — he was shot down in the swamp!"

And yet I agree with Archie Mayo. "Four Sons" isn't propaganda. It is no more propaganda than a movie of a cloud bank, of a bathing beauty, or a crowded slum seat, or anything that is beautiful or ugly.

BOARD HIRES 227 TEACHERS FOR NEW TERM

122 School Instructors Get Pay Increases Totaling $11,000 at Session.

Funds for the increases which will be paid during 1940 were provided for in the operating appropriation for this year.

The board reappointed all of the 20 principals and supervisors in the schools. While they have not been assigned for the coming year, Supt. W. L. Miller said it was probable that all of them will hold the posts they had this year.

Only two new teachers were employed last night. They were Miss Elizabeth Milloy and Miss Virginia Cabris, both of St. Louis, Mo., who will teach in the deaf school. They will replace substitute teachers who held the jobs during the past semester.

The board accepted the resignation of Miss Virginia Anderson, teacher at the West Fifth street school, and extended for one year the leave of absence of Miss Josephine McFarland, teacher at the Bowman school.

Supt. Miller said there had been fewer resignations so far this spring than in any recent year and consequently fewer jobs open. More vacancies may develop, however, after teachers have had a chance to study their contracts and decide whether they want to accept, Miller added.

Principals and supervisors who were reappointed are:

Jesse Beer, Senior high school; W. W. Blauser, West Fifth street school; H. J. Dotson, John Simpson junior high school; Glenn Rohleder, Johnny Appleseed junior high school; G. W. Harmony, Bowman school; C. C. Secrist, Brinkerhoff school; R. R. Spetka, Bushnell school; Dean G. Rex, Carpenter school; E. W. Kissel, Newman school; George W. Taylor, Prospect school; W. A. Freeman, Western avenue school; Glen L. Robinson, Hedges school; C. A. Divelbiss, Woodland school.

Other supervisors and department heads include Helen E. Hartmann, elementary vocal music; Dora McLeod, primary supervisor; Florence Robison, art supervisor; Sigurd K. Jorgensen, supervisor of orchestras; A. LeMoine Derr, supervisor of vocal music in high school; J. Metton Holcombe, band director, and Harry E. Mehock, director of athletics.

Those who were given teaching contracts were:

Senior High School.

Cast Members in Show at Westinghouse

SHOWS END AT WESTINGHOUSE

600 Employes, Families Cheer At Final Presentation of 'Pure as Driven Snow.'

More than 600 Westinghouse employes and their families alternately hissed and booed the villain and cheered the heroine and hero as the final presentation of the old-fashioned "meller-drammer" was given in the Westinghouse auditorium last night.

The play, "Pure As the Driven Snow," one of the employe shows sponsored by the Industrial Relations department, has been put on for ten consecutive nights before audiences totalling more than 4,000.

In former years a "variety" type of show has been presented by employes for their fellow-workers and families. This year, for the first time, a full length play was attempted, and its acceptance has led to plans for future productions of a similar nature.

L. E. Osborne, Manager of Engineering and Manufacturing of the Merchandising Division, welcomed the audience, and in officially pronouncing the benediction on the presentations, praised the cast highly and intimated that additional plays could be expected.

A "Gay Nineties" atmosphere was created by the presentation of old-fashioned songs in modern treatment by Jane Weuthrick, a "barber shop" quartet and the Westinghouse orchestra. Members of the quartet were, Max Williams, Bill Wampfler, "Van" Van Auker, and "Bing" Chamberlain. The audience approved of streamlining such old favorites of "When You and I Were Young, Maggie," "My Sweetheart's the Man In the Moon," "Annie Rooney," and many others.

B. H. Goodenough, safety supervisor, and assistant director of the Community Players, directed the play. Members of the production staff consisted of T. R. Cuddy, Richard Taylor and M. F. Haas, Paul Hensler, Glen Macy and Paul Metzler. The set was designed and built by Frank Forshee.

OF HEAVEN'S BENEDICTION

CHAPTER XV

Speeding up of activities left no time for musings on personal matters. A travel agency saw Brooke after the next two weeks and through her heard of Mrs. Kingsbury's preference for a certain ship, even a certain cabin and a certain stewardess. For Brooke there was much telephoning, walking and writing letters. When finally all plans were completed, Mrs. Kingsbury, Ellen, Francis and Brooke were to go via the Panama Canal to Los Angeles, remain there for a few days and then take another ship to Hawaii.

The old lady, brightened by the plans, was more conversational than she had ever been and announced one morning that she must have new clothes. Francis was called and a shopping expedition followed, an expedition to three shops only, where Mrs. Kingsbury had always bought clothes and where the salesgirls remembered her, fussed over her and groaned when they were out of earshot. But to Brooke the cross, distrustful old lady had become rather a pathetic figure with her incurable wanderlust, her homelessness and her money. So that when the proprietress of one of the little shops brought forth a hat comically unbecoming to Mrs. Kingsbury and the salesgirls smothered giggles, Brooke spoke up. "Not that one," she said gently.

In her few leisure moments she assembled her own limited wardrobe and bought a few new things, being careful of her money. She had her first free afternoon the day Mrs. Kingsbury's lawyer, a dignified elderly man, called. She walked, feeling spring in the cool gentle air. The arrival of the attorney was, as Ellen put it, food for thought. Ellen thought the old lady always changed her will each time she summoned her attorney.

* * *

She put all thoughts of her employer, her problems and even the coming trip out of her mind. Odd, that her active life was so unimportant, her passive one, the inner one of her thoughts, uppermost. "It is still the same," she thought. I'm still in love with him. "Strange that she did not want to lose it or let it go, but rather clung to it, afraid that it would go. Strange that she could feel so tender about Rod—as if he had been tender with her, always. Strange that she could feel a proximity still . . .

Occasionally Julian sprang into her mind, mocking her, taunting her by the intimacy with which he had looked at her and the things he had not said, and because he had told her nothing of himself and made her talk about herself. And because no inner secret seemed to escape his keen intuition. "He looked through me," she thought. It was disconcerting, but amusing, too. His curiosity appeased at what Rod had rejected, he probably would not see her again. Yet whenever she passed the Rockefeller Plaza skating rink on her way to the agent's Fifth Avenue office, Julian, arrogant fair head riding above brown tweed shoulders, became startlingly alive.

With Mrs. Kingsbury's reluctant permission she was going home this week end. Both Helen and Grace had written, urging her to make her good-byes in person. Brooke knew that her stepmother wished merely to see how Rod's marriage had affected her and to question her on her life in New York, and though there had never been the slightest reason to doubt Grace's sincerity and honesty, Brooke knew that this meeting would be strained and unhappy for both.

* * *

Wearing her black suit, a tailored white blouse and the absurd little black hat that resembled an Egyptian fez, she met Jim at the station at a little before noon on Saturday.

"Have a good trip, Brooke," he drawled, standing over her, smiling a little with a pipe between his teeth, his brown hair unkempt, his colorful tie crooked. He put a magazine in her hand. "Something to keep you company."

"Thanks, Jim." She thought she was going to cry. How often she had stood in this exact spot with Rod, wanting to cry because she could not bear to leave him! She was like a bouncing ball, she thought.

Jim said, "Give my love to Grace and tell her if she wants to come down, the same old hospitality waits." And as people began to surge forward, he looked at her somewhat anxiously and smiled. "So long, Brooke. I'll see you before you sail. . . ."

The monotony of the journey was relieved only by a brief storm and the political discussion of two fellow travelers, a belligerent elderly woman and an opinionated young man. Brooke turned the pages of the magazine absently, feeling adrift again, dreading the moment when she reached Chatham, knowing that Helen and her father would meet the train.

* * *

In the instant before they spoke she saw them with detachment—her stepmother's small birdlike body in the colorful clothes she liked, a beige coat, wine-colored pumps and wine-colored felt hat, a very unsuitable outfit. Her small pinched face, prematurely wrinkled, was rouged too heavily, and a new and permanent wave in her sandy hair had not been a success. How unattractive she was, how nervous!

Her father, an accountant in the mill, tall, thin, with dark melancholy eyes set close together, thinning dark hair speckled with gray, a thin nose and narrow mouth, had not changed in the slightest detail. Indeed it seemed to Brooke that for as long as she could remember his appearance had not altered.

Helen embraced her. Her voice was high and the words came in a nervous rush as she laughed. "I lost your letter and I couldn't remember if this was the train . . . Isn't it wonderful, you going to Hawaii. . . . Looking Brooke up and down, taking in every detail of her clothes. "Why, you look fine. . . ."

* * *

She had always felt, never knowing why, that her father did not approve of her. His temper had been violent when he was young and his frequent moods of depression were unexplainable to Brooke and her mother. He had few friends. Small wonder then that not only Brooke but every one else who knew him was almost shocked when a year after his wife's death he had taken to playing bridge with Helen and her sisters, all teachers, in the house across the street. Other than cards, the radio and the newspaper, he had no outside interests. Brooke had known since she was a tiny girl that her mother, a vital, intelligent, sensitive, attractive woman, had had a lonely, thwarted life. Yet Helen's devotion was obvious and of late years Brooke had seen no flaring of his temper but rather a gentler, more conciliatory attitude toward others.

As they left in a small black sedan, evidently new, Brooke sat alone in the back seat, looking coolly at Helen's excited, pinched little face as she turned around to talk.

Go on. Say it! Ask me how I feel—and all about Rod and Irene—and how it happened.

But Helen gossiped. This person had a new baby; that person was engaged; another had had a church wedding which neither family could afford; Brooke's great-aunt, her mother's aunt who lived in Maine, had had a stroke. Brooke's old position with Dr. Fenwick had been filled by Mary Beasley who was married, and Helen disapproved strongly of married women working. On and on until the car stopped before the big old-fashioned, shabby cottage shaded by huge, ancient trees.

Helen was saying as they walked up the path to the porch, "And the house is so big we're thinking of making the second floor into an apartment and renting it. Really, you know, it's no sense for two people having such a big house. . . . You go upstairs. I've got to go to the kitchen. . . ."

Her room, high-ceilinged and wide, furnished with odd, old mahogany pieces, and with the quilt on the bed her grandmother had made, was just as she had left it. But it was no longer her room . . . If she returned it might be the living-room of newlyweds. She took off her hat and ran a comb through her hair. There was no place for her here. Was there a place for her somewhere? Some place to plant new roots, to be content, to be peacefully happy and wildly happy as she had been in this room . . .

Helen called her. Somehow, the old-fashioned walnut furniture of the dining-room was slightly overwhelming. Helen had put on her "best" linen cloth, her "best" silver and china. They were treating her as if she were a guest. Brooke felt a slight wave of shame at her animosity toward her stepmother, a wave of shame which dissolved with the certainty that Helen's effusive hospitality would soon vanish if her stepdaughter were to announce that she was returning to Chatham to stay.

History's greatest battle rages as 2000 tanks clash in a mad inferno of hurtling steel and flame. Seems that the peaceful machine born in Kansas cornfields has developed into a monster that now rocks the world.

Development of serious eye trouble usually results from neglect of early correction of minor deficiencies. Therefore, it's wise to have your eyes tested regularly. Have them scientifically examined now and given the proper corrective attention they need.

Four Teams Open Season In Commercial League

Four teams in the YMCA Commercial softball league will tee off tomorrow night for the first time this season, to inaugurate their play in the league. The Moose outfit will meet the Barnes Manufacturers at North Lake park, while the Town Taverns tackle the Nick's Place team at Liberty park diamond.

Indians Stop Yanks Again

Al Smith Scatters Three Hits In 10-2 Win.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The Indians quest for good southpaw pitching is over.

* * *

Two of their portsiders stand atop the American league, Al Milnar with four consecutive victories and Al Smith with three. In addition Harry Eisenstat has turned in some good relief jobs.

* * *

Smith notched his third yesterday by turning back the once-mighty New York Yankees, 10 to 2, as he allowed three scattered hits. Milnar was to seek his fifth decision today, with another lefty, Marvin Russo, due for the world champions.

Jeff Heath blasted his sixth and seventh home runs of the season to lead a 17-hit barrage against three Yankees pitchers — Spud Chandler, Bump Hadley and Atley Donald. Smith allowed only one hit up to the ninth when Bill Dickey doubled home the two runs.

Heath opened scoring in the fourth with his first homer. The Tribal bats boomed out five runs the next inning on Lou Boudreau's triple, singles by Roy Weatherly and Ben Chapman, doubles by Ken Keltner and Smith, two walks and a passed ball.

Cleveland added three runs in the sixth on singles by Chapman and Keltner, Rollie Hemsley's double, a walk, a wild pitch and an error. Heath's second circuit smash in the eighth boosted the Tribal total to 10.

Cleveland's 17 hits show the weakness of Yankee pitching.

* * *

Afield the champions were charged with only one error—Dickey's wild throw to third in the sixth. But they had plenty of physical and mental lapses that didn't get 'a the box score.

* * *

Boudreau got credit for a triple in the seventh as the usually dependable DiMaggio misjudged his drive. After the ball got by him, DiMaggio made no effort to retrieve it and Mills finally dashed over from left field to throw the ball to third.

Class 'B' Golfers Ready for Opening

By GEORGE SATTLER

EIGHT TEAMS in The News-Journal Class B league will tread the fairways at Possum Run Thursday to inaugurate circuit play for the 1940 season.

* * *

Harvey's Sample Shoes, last year's champions, and the Ohio Public Service linksmen, 1939 runner-up, will be among the missing this year when the boys tee off Thursday. Neither organization entered a team in the league.

* * *

However, four new outfits were listed on the Class B schedule for the 1940 race. They are: City News, Tinkley Lumber company, Tucker Furniture company, and the Junior Association of Commerce.

* * *

Teams that will be back in the running again this year are: Central Fruit, Elks Club, Bissman company and the News-Journal.

* * *

Thursday's schedule pairs the News-Journal with Central Fruit, Junior Association of Commerce with the City News, Tinkey Lumber with the Bissman company, and Elks club with the Tinkey Furniture company.

Takes Big Bunch of Homers To Win Attention in Majors

(By Associated Press)

HOME RUN HITTING being what it is today, a fellow just about has to collect them in clusters to get any notice.

* * * * *

There were 20 round trip tickets punched in the major leagues yesterday and the same number the day before, so you can see why most of them get lost in the shuffle.

* * * * *

But you can't overlook three in one game, which is the little stunt Pinky Higgins of the Detroit Tigers showed the Boston Red Sox in beating the American league leaders 10-7.

The trio of homers came on consecutive times at bat and brought in four other runners.

The victory was credited to Schoolboy Rowe, who went to the mound in the fifth after Jimmy Foxx had hit his tenth home run of the season with the bases loaded off Tommy Bridges.

Jeff Heath of the Cleveland Indians, who hit two home runs in one game last Friday, hit two again yesterday as the Tribe trimmed the New York Yankees for the second straight time 10-2.

Another home run bombardment originated from an unsuspected quarter, the Philadelphia Athletics, as they stopped the St. Louis Browns 8-4. Frank Hayes put together two of the game's five homers in the course of helping Chubby Dean to his fourth victory against one defeat.

The only game without a home run was the Chicago White Sox's 5-4 triumph over the Washington Senators, the Sox's first victory in Chicago this season.

The Cincinnati Reds were crushed 13-4 by the Boston Bees, six of the runs coming on homers by Al Lopez and Carvell Rowell.

The Brooklyn Dodgers lost another chance to take advantage of Cincinnati's plight by dropping a 6-4 decision to the Chicago Cubs. All the Dodger runs were crowded into the sixth inning when they batted Bill Lee off the mound.

* * * * *

The Pittsburgh Pirates lost another heart-breaker 8-7 to the Philadelphia Phillies. The Pirates were leading 7-1 going into the ninth, the only run against Mace Brown being a homer by Chuck Klein. Then Brown developed a sore arm and three other Pittsburgh pitchers squandered the lead. Dick Lanahan finally forced the winning run across with a walk.

* * * * *

Cliff Melton, the New York Giants' seasoned southpaw, shut out the St. Louis Cardinals 6-0 on six hits. Harry Danning accounted for five of the runs on a two-run homer and a triple with the bases loaded while Mel Ott's solo homer scored the other.

Braves Beaten By Oilers

Drop Four Games Behind Leaders by Losing 5 to 4 Decision.

By CHARLES MARTIN

THE Mansfield Braves today are sitting uncomfortably in the cellar of the Ohio State league championship race.

Offered an opportunity to climb out of last place at the Fairground last night, the Braves dropped a 5 to 4 decision to the runner-up Findlay Oilers and fell four games behind the pace-setting Lima Pandas.

Mansfield, with Howard Beals, Carl Foldenauer and Bill Morse pacing the nine-hit attack, forged into the lead in the opening inning but ineffective hurling and poor base-running led to the downfall of the Braves.

* * *

Still looking for new pitching strength, Manager Dewey Stover today picked Bob Petersen, portsider, to face the Pandas at Lima tonight. Petersen was scheduled to hurl last night but Stover made a last second switch to George Laurila.

* * *

The Braves return to the Fairground to clash with Lima at 8:15 p. m. Wednesday and Frank Kress is expected to toe the rubber.

Mansfield pulled two bad plays in the first two frames last night and it meant the difference between victory and defeat.

Lloyd Graham opened the first with a double and on the next pitch was out attempting to steal third. Beals and Dewey Stover followed with triples and instead of having two runs across the plate, the Braves had one.

Again in the second, Bill Padar started the stanza with a single and on the first pitch was out stealing second. Morse then hit a double on the next pitch.

* * *

Mansfield spotted Laurila to a 3 to 0 advantage as the clubs went into the third and added another tally in the fifth. The lead looked good for Laurila was effective with men on bases.

* * *

Findlay found George for a pair of markers in the sixth and came back with three in the seventh to end the scoring. That one run advantage was plenty for Don May, slender southpaw, whitewashed the Braves the rest of the way. He didn't allow a hit after the fifth. The Braves went down in order the last four chapters. It was May's second straight win over Mansfield.

In the other league contests last night, Lima walloped Fostoria, 6-1, and Tiffin edged Fremont, 10-9.

Replacements Show Results

Card Pitcher Hurls Red Birds to 7 to 3 Victory.

(By Associated Press)

The replacements sent down by the St. Louis Cards are beginning to show results in the improved play of the Columbus Red Birds in the American association race.

The Cards shipped 26-year-old Harry Brecheen to the Birds a few days ago. Last night he southpawed Columbus to a 7 to 3 victory over Louisville. The victory hoisted the Birds out of a tie for the cellar into sixth place and left them only a game behind the Colonels.

Indianapolis advanced into a third-place tie with Milwaukee, only two games back of second-place Minneapolis by outlasting Toledo in a slugfest, 12 to 8.

The four eastern teams are idle today while the four western clubs play among themselves.

Hager Collects 69 In High School Match

AL HAGER is beginning to get dividends for the long hours of practice he spent on the fairways and greens.

* * *

The 15-year-old sophomore, ace of Mansfield high golf team, climaxed his brief career at Possum Run yesterday when he smashed out a brilliant three-under-par 69 as Mansfield smothered Sandusky, 15½ to ½.

* * *

Hager, playing his second year of competitive golf as a member of the high school team, had four "birdies," 13 pars and a bogey. He toured the inside nine in 34 and came in with a 35. It is the lowest score shot by a Mansfield high golfer in more than two years.

Moore Assigned To Comb Bees From Cincinnati Red's Hair

BOSTON —(AP)— Whitey Moore, with a record of one victory and no losses this season, was assigned to comb the Bees out of the Reds' hair today against Hurler William Posedel in the rubber game of a series.

* * *

Proving again that when the mighty fall, they fall hard, the Reds took a 13 to 4 trouncing from Boston yesterday.

* * *

Moreover, the Bostonians broke into the two-figure column in scoring against the league leading Reds, who have won 18 games and lost only seven. The Bees, the only team to enjoy such a scoring distinction thus far this year, have done it twice. The first time was May 8 with a 10-4 victory in Cincinnati.

Boston scored once in the second inning and then started fireworks which netted 11 runs in the third and fourth rounds. Al Lopez paced the third inning attack with a three-run homer.

Carvel Rowell followed in the fourth with a three-run circuit clout off Red Barrett, pitching for the Reds after Junior Thompson and Walter Hutchings had taken cover.

* * *

Rowell's blow sent Barrett out, Johnny Vander Meer and Elmer Riddle taking over to stem the tide.

* * *

The Reds got to Dick Errickson for 11 safeties, counting a run in the first, two in the third and one in the eighth. Vander Meer and Werber each hit doubles.

Terriers Boast League Record

Pile Up 14 Runs In One Inning Yesterday.

CANTON —(AP)— The Canton Terriers boasted a Mid-Atlantic league record of 14 runs in one inning today.

* * *

They piled them up in the third frame last night while defeating Akron's Yankees, 22 to 2. Eight hits, including three home runs, seven walks and two errors accounted for the scoring spree.

* * *

Charleston hopped out of last place by defeating the Youngstown Browns, 7 to 2, with the help of home runs by Ed Hall and Edison Quinther in an 11-hit attack.

* * *

Dayton shut out Portsmouth, 10 to 0, for the Red Birds' third straight loss. Ed Albostra fanned nine men and held the Birds to three hits.

Tonight's games: Youngstown at Charleston, Dayton at Portsmouth, Canton at Akron.

GRACE CHURCH DROPS 22 TO 4 DECISION

Frenchmen To Enter Classic

Large List of Foreign Cars In 500-Mile Race.

INDIANAPOLIS—(INS)—One of its largest lists of foreign competitors in many years was promised today for the 500-mile Indianapolis auto race May 30, following receipt of word two French drivers are en route from Europe to drive cars in the speed classic.

* * *

Word that the Frenchmen, Rene Dreyfus and Rene Lebegue, are on the Conte Di Savoia, due to dock in New York on Wednesday, was received by race officials from their manager, Bernard Musik, who is already in New York.

* * *

Dreyfus and Lebegue have been consistent money winners in European Grand Prix auto races, and the foreign cars they will drive are owned by Mrs. Lucy O'Reilly Schell, an American woman who has resided for many years in France. Both the drivers were demobilized from the army to take part in the "500."

Another outstanding foreign competitor lined up for the race is Paul Riganti, the Argentine champ-

New Big Ten Champs Likely

Defending Titlist 22 Strokes Behind Pace-Makers.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Crowning of two new champions impended likely today as players entered the second half of the 72-hole medal play western conference golf tournament.

* * *

Northwestern University, the defending team titlist, was 22 strokes behind pace-making Illinois.

* * *

Illinois entered the 36-hole home stretch with 628 strokes, six ahead of Ohio State. They were followed in order by Michigan with 636, Minnesota 642, Wisconsin 647, Northwestern 650, Iowa 659, Indiana 666, and Purdue 672.

* * *

In the race for individual honors, William (Billy) Gilbert, an Ohio State sophomore from Cincinnati, began the second day with an eight-stroke lead after shooting a one-over-par 71-74—145 yesterday on the wind-swept Ohio State course.

R. Palmer of Michigan was second with 153 and G. Modjeska of Illinois was third with 154.

University Hall Rebuilt in 1770 Original Style

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—(INS)—Reconstruction of University hall at Brown university as an exact replica of Brown's original "college edifice" of 1770 is nearing completion.

The cupola is designed from an old drawing and from portions of the original bell tower discovered under more modern housing last August.

Most of the details of the new hall has been inspired by the John Nicholas Brown house and the Avis Brown house in Providence, and by the Caleb Clapp house in Boston. These homes are considered the finest old New England structures still standing.

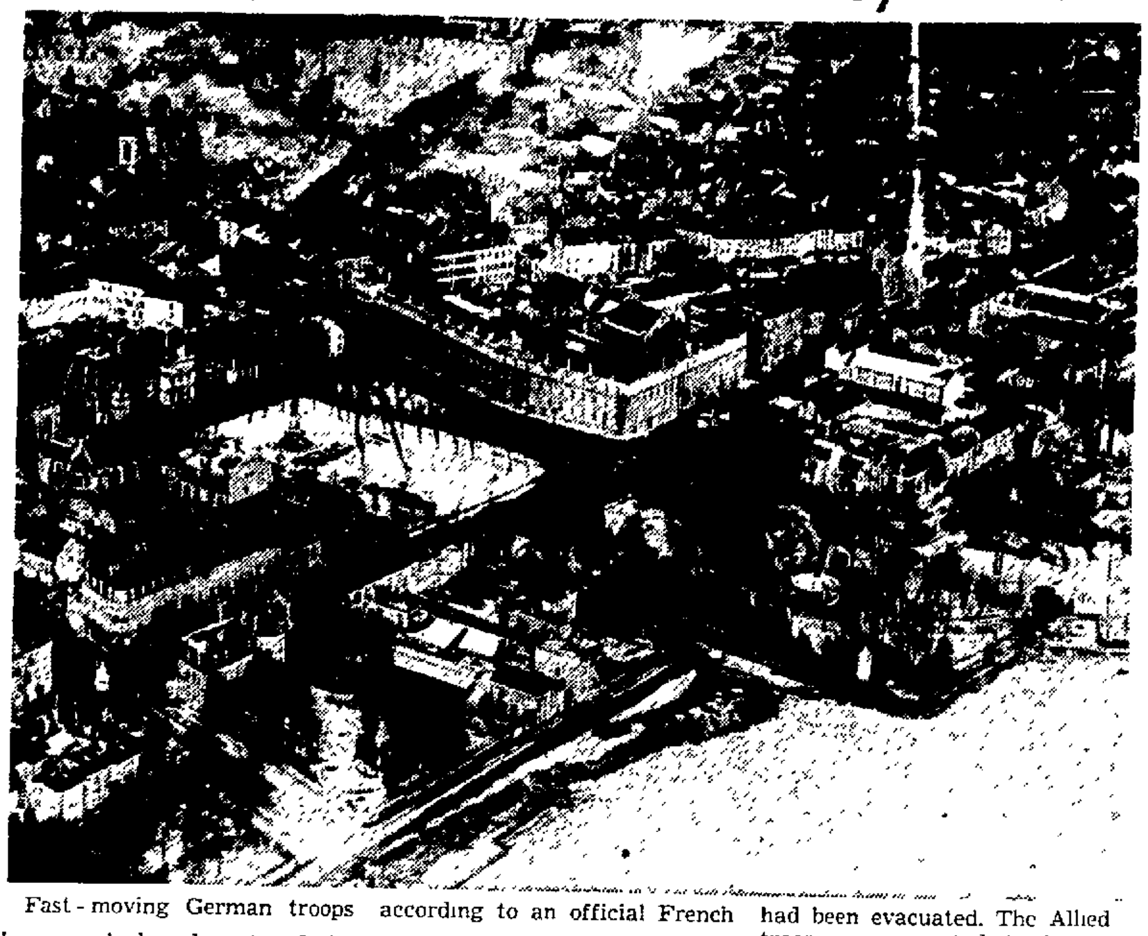

Furnishings are designed to recall eighteenth century drawing rooms.

Sedan, French Town Taken by Nazis

Fast-moving German troops have reached and captured the French town of Sedan (above), according to an official French War Office communique. Sedan, standing on the Belgian border, had been evacuated. The Allied troops are reported to have withdrawn to a prearranged line, prepared for decisive battle.

THEATERS

Edison, a Young Man.

With Spencer Tracy again portraying a real life character so expertly that once more he enacts his stellar role without use of make-up. "Edison, the Man," is being shown at the Ohio theater through Thursday. The story is basically a young man's story, since Edison began his inventive career at the age of 22. The picture carries him through his courtship, his home life as a father, and his struggles for achievement, culminating his creation of the phonograph at the age of 30 and the incandescent light at the early age of 32.

* * *

"Four Wives" Returns.

Showing at the Majestic theater through Thursay will be "The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex," starring Bette Davis and Errol Flynn. Bette Davis is cast as the self-willed, vain and domineering Queen Elizabeth, torn between her love of England and the handsome young Earl of Essex, played by Flynn. The co-feature is "Four Wives," in which the "Four Daughters" are married and their family crises bring about an interesting story. The Lane sisters, Gail Page, and Claude Rains have the leads.

* * *

Greta In Romantic Comedy.

"The Return of Dr. X." with Humphrey Bogart, Rosemary Lane, and Wayne Morris in the cast is one of the pictures at the Ritz theater Wednesday and Thursday. The main feature is "Ninotchka," starring Greta Garbo. This latter story is a romantic comedy in which she is teamed with Melvyn Douglas. She plays a stern Soviet comissar sent to Paris by the Russian government to sell a noblewoman's confiscated jewels.

* * *

Jean Has Two Husbands.

"Two Many Husbands" is the story showing at the Park theater. Fred MacMurray, Melvyn Douglas and Jean Arthur have the leading roles in which much confusion is had by Jean marrying Douglas, thinking Fred was drowned. When Fred returns Jean must decide between them. The co-feature is "Undercover Doctor," starring Lloyd Nolan.

* * *

"I Was An Adventuress."

Zorina, the famous ballet dancer, is featured in the picture "I Was An Adventuress" which begins Wednesday at the Madison theater. She is cast in her first dramatic role of one who thought love was not for her until she meets Richard Greene. Erich Von Stroheim is seen as the suave Parisian swindler, who works with Zorina and Peter Lorre. The co-feature is "Curtain Call" starring Barbara Read, Helen Vinson, Alan Mowbray and John Archer.

CRESTLINE—Tenny Malatto, daughter of Mrs. Mary Malatoo, of Lincoln avenue, was admitted to Crestline Emergency hospital Sunday night for treatment.

BRIGHT COLORS

"Best Dressed" Woman Gives Secret of Success.

LONDON—(U.P.)—"Bright colors, suitable makeup and plenty of smiles"—this is the recipe for beauty—war or no war—used by the world's best dressed woman.

She is Mme. Antender Patine, wife of the Bolivian minister in Paris, who is visiting London.

Mme. Patine was judged the best dressed woman by Parisian dressmakers, with the Duchess of Windsor second and the Duchess of Kent third. Beauty, she believes, comes from only one source—happiness.

Mme. Patine never has to diet. She eats as much as she likes and what she likes, but she seldom drinks or smokes.

Although it has been rumored that she spends fabulous sums on her clothes, she actually never spends more than $10,000 a year. Her suits she buys in London. Her gowns are made by Lelong and Alix and her hats by Suzy, but her shoes are American.

Mme. Patine buys her two small daughters' clothes in London. That is one of the reasons for her present visit.

Crippled Youth Seeks to Obtain Pilot's License

PHILADELPHIA — (INS) — Told by friends that he'd better forget his aviation ambitions, Arla Green, legless suburban Prospect Park youth, today is well on the way to receiving his pilot's license.

The 20-year-old, six-footer lost both legs under a railroad switch engine when he was seven. From that time on he adopted the hobby of building and flying model planes and reading up on aviation.

Finally, equipped with artificial limbs, Arla was graduated from high school and entered an aviation school. Last year he won a mechanic's license.

Now Green is engaged in making giant motors for U. S. Army planes in a factory at Hartford, Conn. He gets plenty of time for flying, too.

DEADLINE SET FOR FILING AAA APPLICATIONS

Richland Farmers Have Until June 1 to Submit Requests For Acreage Set-Up.

Richland county farmers who want the federal government to set up wheat acreage allotments for their farms must submit their requests to the county AAA office on North Diamond street by June 1, Guy L. Taylor, county chairman, said today.

Allotments for the wheat crop which will be harvested in 1941 are being set up now and will be distributed to farmers within a few weeks, Taylor added.

Every farmer who participates in the federal crop program receives an allotment and he must keep within it to receive AAA crop checks for reducing his acreage and improving the soil on his farm.

Farmers who plan to participate in the crop program this year and have produced no wheat on their farms for the past three years must submit requests for acreage allotments.

Taylor said all farmers who comply with the AAA wheat program requirements are eligible to receive soil conservation payments, wheat parity payments if funds are allotted for them this year, wheat crop insurance, and wheat loans in 1941.

GOLD IN THAR

Civic Center Built on Foundation of Precious Metal.

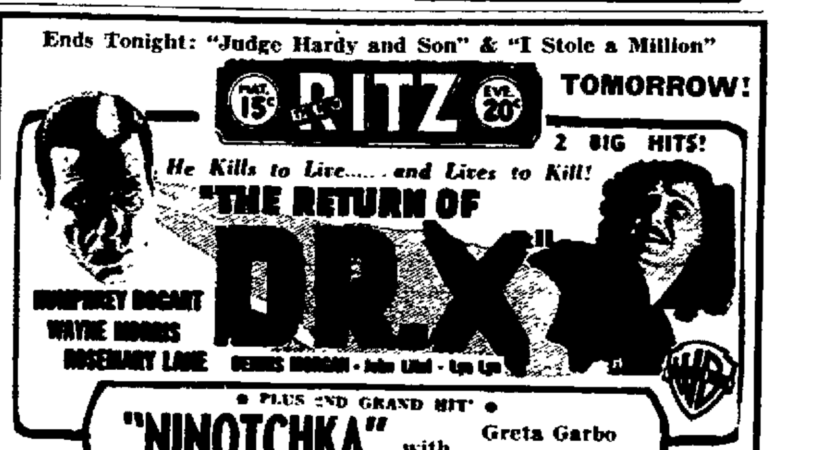

GREAT FALLS, Mont.—(AP)—After the concrete foundations of the new Civic Center building were constructed, the contractor discovered there was gold in the gravel he had used.

Running about 25 cents to the ton, the contractor said, the gold was so fine and of such small quantity it couldn't have been recovered from the gravel. But about $750 worth is in the foundations.

TWO ELECTED BY AUXILIARY

Mrs. J. L. Stevens Named to Medical Association Post; Mrs Fischer New Director.

Two Mansfield women had been chosen today for state and district offices in the women's auxiliary to the Ohio State Medical association, a new organization.

Mrs. J. L. Stevens was elected secretary-treasurer of the state auxiliary and Mrs. Lincoln Fisher was chosen director of District 11 at the auxiliary's first state meeting in Cincinnati.

Richland county, which has one of the two county auxiliaries in the state, now has two votes in the council of the state organization, more than any other county.

Mrs. Fisher's district is made up of eight counties. They are Richland, Ashland, Lorain, Medina, Huron, Holmes, Erie, and Wayne.

The resolution which brought the organization of the Ohio auxiliary was submitted to the Ohio State Medical asosciation last year at its Toledo convention by Richland county women. They formed a county auxiliary about 18 months ago. Only other county unit in Ohio is in Stark county.

Mrs. Fisher was a delegate to the Cincinnati convention. Mrs. Stevens and Mrs. Leonard C. Nigh also attended from Richland county.

TINKERS WITH AGED CLOCKS

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — (U.P.) — Twenty years ago Charles R. Brewer, now a professor of English and Bible at David Lipscomb college, Nashville, tried his hand at doing what every man probably has wanted to do at one time or another—take a clock apart and put it back together.

Today Prof. Brewer's hobby is to buy broken clocks of ancient vintage—some dating back to the early 1800's—and to repair them. Fourteen of these clocks now tick away in his study alone, and every room in his home has a number of the timepieces.

HEAVY SELLING WAVE CRUSHES STOCK MARKET

Adverse War News Revives Nervousness In Wall Street; Leaders Fall 1 to 11 Points.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Heavy selling waves crushed stock market prices today as adverse war news revived nervousness in Wall street.

With the ticker tape frequently late, leaders fell 1 to more than 11 points, many to new bottoms for two years or so. Home business developments were almost ignored and even bullishness over the rearmament program waned.

Bonds sank with major commodities, although wheat futures stiffened after an early relapse. "Free" sterling and the French franc weakened in terms of the dollar.

Prominent share losers included Westinghouse, du Pont, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Douglas Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Sperry, J. I. Case, Sears Roebuck, Anaconda, Eastman Kodak, Loft, Great Northern, American Telephone and U. S. Rubber.

While events abroad held virtually the entire attention of boardrooms, financial quarters noted with some satisfaction the statement of reporting Federal Reserve member banks disclosing commercial, industrial and agricultural loans, in the week ended May 15, increased $10,000,000 after three consecutive weekly declines.

ROTH BROS. RETIRE

Roth Bros., Charles J., and William A., who have retired from business, wish to thank all their patrons for their very kind, and loyal patronage during these many years.

It has been a pleasure to serve you all; and it is with the greatest regret, that we are compelled on account of poor health, to retire.

This market, one of the oldest retail stores in the city, was established by their father, Joseph Roth in 1870, some seventy years ago, at the site where the Roth Building is now located, at 11 Park Ave. West.

Herman P. Wappner, member of the firm, has taken over the interest of these brothers, and is now at 18 S. Park St., and will have the same line of quality meats.

SILENT TRIBUTE TO THOSE THAT HAVE GONE BEFORE

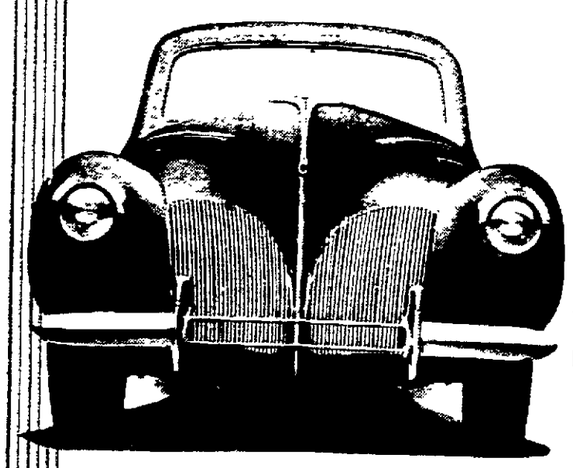

It Is Silent Because It Freezes Without Moving Parts

Each year thousands of worn out refrigerators find their "final resting place" on the city dump. And, each year, more and more of these refrigerators are being replaced by the one automatic refrigerator that freezes without moving parts to wear out. This different operating principle of gas refrigeration assures lasting efficiency, continued low operating cost, permanent silence. Be sure to get these big advantages in your next refrigerator. See the new Servel Electrolux models now. Prices are lowest in Servel history.

Nazis Reach French Coast After Drive

Claim Fall of Abbeville, at Mouth of Somme, in Terrific Offensive; Report Million Trapped.

cording to the communique, were trapped where they could be supplied only across the water from Britain and could be removed only in the same way unless they can rally to break through the German lines.

The high command said that the enemy continued to attempt to escape from a long pocket formed by the German troops south of Valenciennes but that all of these attempts were smashed.

All French counter-attacks were repulsed, the high command said, and many French tanks were destroyed.

The battle in which the German mechanized forces—striking with great swiftness and at widely separated points—broke through to the channel was described by the high command as "the greatest attack operation of all times."

The Germans said that sufficient infantry already had been brought up to ensure in full the rear communications of the Germans who had reached the coast "and who now were fully established."

It was stated authoritatively that the column, composed of 60,000 troops, had crashed through the Allied defenses at Perrone, just below the French-Belgian border about 80 miles north of Paris, and had pushed westward beyond Amiens.

The Allies were said to have fallen back to position near Abbeville on the coast at the mouth of the Somme river. The Allied retreat was claimed by the Germans to have been "at full speed."

Some reports that the Germans already had penetrated the outskirt Allied defenses around Abbeville were described as being premature.

Th road along which the German tanks advanced, between Amiens and the coast, is a broad, concrete highway.

The German advance was protected by dive-bombers which swooped down on the Allied forces and, according to German dispatches, scattered them wildly.

Britain Spurs Home Defense As Nazis Approach Channel

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—British home defenses were pressed at "war speed" today as the German lightning drive toward France's north coast brought steadily nearer the double threat of air attack and actual Nazi invasion.

"Invasion of Britain is perfectly feasible," declared the Daily Express, published by Lord Beaverbrook, minister of aircraft production, "but it cannot be successful if we are prepared."

War Secretary Anthony Eden told the house of commons that response to the call for local defense volunteers had been "satisfactory."

Prime Minister Churchill sat between his predecessor, Neville Chamberlain, now lord president of the council, and Eden at the first session of commons attended by his new ministers.

A British military spokesman said the western front battle, however, was "more confused than ever, with everybody behind everybody else's lines."

"Bands of German tanks wandering about living on the country," he said, are thrusting a wide salient into France, but are "becoming more vulnerable to counter attack" and "the French hold many places from which to deliver such blows."

The air ministry told of successful attacks by British bombers against oil refineries in northwestern Germany and of steady pounding of lines of communications of the Germans' mechanized offensive.

The new German pressure came as Britain suffered these naval reverses:

1. The 9,550-ton cruiser Effingham was lost "as a result of damage sustained through striking an uncharted rock off the Norwegian coast." It was the first cruiser Britain has reported officially lost since the start of the war.

2. Four British merchant ships totalling 8,995 tons and one Allied vessel of 316 tons admittedly were sunk "by enemy action" during the week ended May 10.

(In Berlin, the high command reported damaging hits on a British battleship and heavy chuiser off the Norwegian coast as well as destructive air raids on merchant shipping and French war vessels on the French-Belgian coast.)

Britons found some cheer in the Germans' wastage of airplanes and trained crews at a ratio Churchill placed at "three or four to one," but it was recognized that this was not a decisive factor in the attempt to break the Nazi spearhead.

British leaders were outspoken in describing the situation as critical.

Describes Tank Warfare, 'Strangest Ever Fought'

By RALPH HEINZEN

(U P Staff Correspondent)

FRENCH ARMY GENERAL HEADQUARTERS—Out at the front today the Allies and Germans are fighting the strangest war ever fought.

It is a war between thousands of little forts, in each of them a couple to 10 to 15 sweating men, who sweep fields, forests, roads and village streets with fire which it would be impossible for a man alone to live under for five minutes.

The Allied tanks are now in action, smacking into German positions with their guns blazing, firing their ammunition, and racing back to take on oil and more ammunition.

The crews wear the special leather helmets, padded front and back, to protect their heads which bark against the steel tank walls.

As the tank goes into battle its escape doors are clamped tight, leaving only peep holes to look through.

The gunner in the turret has a radio with ear phones through which to receive orders. He guides the driver by nudges of his toes because talk is impossible in this din.

After a few hours in the din and heat of a tank the men are worn out. Yet the men in this battle, some of them, have been fighting for days from crisis to crisis.

Not infrequently they faint inside the steel walls from air saturated with powder smoke and fumes of gasoline and burning oil.

Frequently the crews are stopped by a direct hit from some close range gun rings their tank like a bell. Their danger is that a machine gun or anti-tank shell will pierce the sides. In that case, they usually die, because gas fumes are ignited.

REYNAUD BARES COSTLY ERRORS, FRENCH RETREAT

Premier Admits Loss of Two Towns to Nazis, Maintains His 'Faith In France.'

"For I believe in France."

"Yesterday," Reynaud said in his recital of Allied setbacks, "we were at Stenay (20 miles southeast of Sedan) and at Peronne (on the Somme 19 miles northwest of St. Quentin.)

"This morning I learned that Amiens and Arras have been occupied.

"But the morale of our army is unquestionable.

"However, the enemy is using new methods of disorganization behind the lines."

The initial breach in France's defenses, Reynaud revealed, extends for 65 miles.

"Perfect collaboration," Reynaud continued, "exists between myself, Marshal Petain and General Weygand (Vice Premier Marshal Henri Philippe Petain and General Maxime Weygand, Allied commander-in-chief.)

"We must have confidence in our great leader, our soldiers and our airmen.

"The country is in danger and I shall tell the truth to the senate and the nation.

"By reason of incredible mistakes, which will be punished, bridges over the Meuse were not blown up."

Reynaud paid tribute to the work of the British Royal Air Force. Members of the senate jumped to their feet and applauded when the premier mentioned the name of Petain.

Veritable "clouds" of German parachute troops are being dropped all over the region surrounding Cambrai, French military spokesmen revealed today as the high command announced repulse of German attacks along the Aisne river near Rethel.

The sky-fighters are attempting to seize railroads, bridges and vital lines of communication, it was said, but apparently are meeting with stiff French resistance everywhere.

The French war communique said that the military situation is still confused between the Somme river and Cambrai.

"In spite of numerous engagements," said the communique, "the night brought no important change.

"The situation remains confused between the Somme and the region on Cambrai.

"Enemy attacks were repulsed at various points on the front, particularly along the Aisne and in the region of Rethel.

Nazis Sight Eiffel Tower Through Glasses.

By PIERRE J. HUSS

WITH THE GERMAN ARMIES ON THE WESTERN FRONT—(INS)—Chancellor Hitler's "blitzkrieg" against the Allies stormed forward into another stage today as word came in that German advance scouts have caught sight of the Eiffel tower in Paris through their field glasses.

Ordinarily this would mean that Paris is gradually coming into sight of the most advanced German units.

Actually, however, the French capital is still 60 miles away as the crow flies from the main body of German forces.

An attempt to capture the French capital, it was frankly conceded, will prove a "tough" job if the French rally for a grand defensive stand such as did Joffre's taxicab army in 1914.

It is my impression after talking with responsible German officers that Hitler hopes to sweep—within his right and left pincers—the British forces into the channel ports of France and Belgium, trapping them and forcing them to return to England.

From similar indications at the front it can be assumed that the moment the British begin to embark—if they do—from Calais and Boulogne and Ostend for home, Marshal Herman Wilhelm Goering's airforce will swoop down and attempt to exact a terrific toll in men and ships.

It is permissable today to reveal the fact that the same dashing, monocled General Walter Von Reichenau who smashed the Polish forces also has been entrusted by Hitler with carrying on the modern Schlieffen plan in a sweep through Belgium to the channel ports, supported by forces from south Holland via Antwerp.

WON'T DELAY REINSTATEMENT

NLRB Decision to Review Case Hinges on Relief Question.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Nationalabor relations board officials learned today that the Supreme court's belated decision to review application of the order against Republic Steel Corp. would not delay reinstatement of strikers with back pay estimated by the CIO at $5,000,000.

A ruling on Republic's second request by the court yesterday agreed to review a third U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals decision upholding the NLRB's order but restricted its application to the narrow point of whether the company must reimburse state and federal workmen's agencies for funds paid to workers during the period in which they were found to have been unlawfully discriminated against them.

In Flight From Louvain, City of Ruins

Through the debris-littered street of Louvain, Belgium, past bombed-shattered buildings, women begin the long trek in search of sanctuary from war's horrors. Woman at left has her head bowed over her baby as she flees the city just before its occupation by the Nazis. It was learned today that the famous Louvain library, rebuilt after the World war through contributions of pennies by American school children, had once more been completely destroyed.

C. A. DOW DIES

Former Parks Superintendent Succumbs at Home.

Charles A. (Happy) Dow, 67, of 121 Gibson avenue, resident of Mansfield 38 years, died Monday at his home following a two-month illness. He was born near Loudonville, April 25, 1873.

Mr. Dow operated a flower shop in Mansfield for a number of years and for 14 years was superintendent of the Mansfield city parks, retiring several years ago. He was a member of St. Luke's Lutheran church.

Surviving are his wife, Emma; a son, Marion of Crestline; a daughter, Olive at home, a brother, Orlando, of Washington, and a sister, Dora of Millersburg.

The body was removed to the Wappner funeral home where services will be held at 3:30 p. m. Wednesday in charge of Rev. H. S. Garnes. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

Jack Dempsey and Third Wife Decide To Call It Quits

NEW YORK — (UP) — Jack Dempsey and his third wife, the former Hannah Williams, were separated today, amicably and because of incompatibility.

Moses Polakoff, attorney for Mrs. Dempsey, said the couple had agreed to separate and that there would be no court action. He said the details and the custody of their two children, Joan, 6, and Barbara, 4, would be determined when Dempsey returns to New York next week.

The former heavyweight boxing champion and Miss Williams were married July 18, 1933, at Elko, Nev. This was the third marriage failure for each of them.

SCHOOLS, OFFICES CLOSED IN TRIBUTE TO MT. GILEAD MAN

MT. GILEAD — Every business place, every office and all of the schools of this community were closed today in tribute to one of its best loved citizens whose death Sunday brought sorrow to every boy and girl in the city.

Charles Dumbaugh, 70, former manager of the Morrow County Telephone company, a member of the board of education, and superintendent of Rivercliff cemetery for the past 18 years, died of a heart attack early Sunday morning at his home. He resided with Mr and Mrs. Irvin Gallagher. Mrs. Gallagher was a niece.

Mr. Dumbaugh was widely known and loved here for his interest in young people and his practical aid in their problems. On many occasions he had purchased formal evening clothes for school boys and girls who couldn't afford it and had paid for uniforms for Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts. He gave them parties and took them to picture shows in groups.

On Saturday night he had taken a group of his young friends to the picture show and afterward had listened to the high school band concert. He was stricken early the next morning and died a short time later.

Funeral services were held at the Methodist church today and the entire city suspended business between 2 and 3 p. m. The groups he had aided attended in formation. Interment was made in Rivercliff cemetery.

He had no children of his own and his wife had died a number of years ago. His only survivors were two brothers and two sisters, George Dumbaugh of Warren, Frank of Mt. Gilead, Mrs. Callie Pressinger, Xenia, and Mrs. Minnie MacDonald of Marion and a number of nieces and nephews.

2 DRAW FINES

Mansfielders Accused of Ignoring Highway Stop Signs.

Two Mansfield men paid fines of $2 and costs this morning for failure to observe stop signs on country roads yesterday.

They were Wade W. Allen, 278 North Main street, and Stephen Cochran, 59 South Diamond street. State patrolmen, who arrested them, said they were playing "follow the leader" when both went through the stop sign at the intersection of Routes 30 and 39.

JOSEPH PATTON DIES AT HOME

Native of Mansfield Succumbs After Brief Illness.

Joseph Patton, 76, of 234 Wayne street, a native of Mansfield, died Monday at his home after a brief illness.

Surviving are three sisters, Mrs. Mary Solomon of Columbus, Mrs. Anna Miller and Mrs. Celia Whitmarch of Cleveland, and several nieces and nephews.

The body was removed to the Wappner funeral home where services will be held at 1:30 p. m. Thursday. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

state sales tax examiner and must resign.

It was understood that Ralph Carroll of Shelby, county juvenile officer, is in line for the post.

R. N. Landfair, East Mansfield former state liquor inspector and a Davey leader, has been mentioned for the Democratic chairmanship if Chairman G. A. Baer decides not to seek the post again.

Baer said today he was undecided about the part he will take in the approaching campaign and had not made up his mind about seeking re-election as chairman.

He said the Democratic committee will meet "early next week at the courthouse." A state law requires county committees to organize within 15 days after the primary which would make May 30 the deadline.

The county election board late yesterday checked the "questionable" ballots cast in the primary and approved the official count, finding few errors in the original tabulation.

In the close G. O. P. contest for sheriff, Ralph Schad, jr., the winner, gained 12 votes on the runner-up, Frank Deringer, and increased his margin to 49 votes. Berlin McCready, third in the race, lost one vote in the re-check.

A. F. Porter, board clerk, said most of the errors were in the tabulation of the total vote rather than in the ballot count at the voting places.

Joseph Jameson, Loraln, one of the Republican nominees for state senator in the 27th-29th district, today filed a statement with the secretary of state, listing campaign expenditures totaling $79.83.

REPORTER SEES HOW WAR HORROR STRUCK LOUVAIN

Worst Destruction In Current Or Polish Campaigns, Says War Correspondent.

It must be counted a total loss along with its 700,000 books.

The origin of the fire we could not ascertain—whether it was started by bombs or, as some Germans alleged, by the British before they evacuated.

The city is now under the administration of a German colonel and troops and labor corps men. Water and electricity supplies remain cut off.

At Lowenhoven, on the Belgian side of the Wilhelmina Canal, we saw the first signs of real fighting where the Germans had captured a strong pill box.

"We captured it by attacking from an unexpected direction," an officer said. "That's the secret of warfare today—attack from where they don't expect it."

I asked why the Belgians had not blown up a high bridge over a steep canal, which certainly would have halted the Germans for some hours.

"We moved too fast," the officer said. "There wasn't enough time between the Belgian retreat and our advance. Besides our engineers know how to handle dynamite and we have found that the Belgians often use time fuses."

But for a few dynamited spots which engineers quickly repaired, the main road to Brussels was almost undamaged—the Germans again had been too fast.

The minute attention to detail in this blitzkrieg, with every cog in Germany geared to advance the striking force, made the World war seem like a slow motion picture by comparison.

There were not many devastated areas. But those there were showed the terrible force, thoroughness and mercilessness of modern warfare.

The Stuka planes took the lead. Then came the tanks along parallel highways and fields. Then came motorized shock troops and ordinary infantry and artillery. For miles there would be almost no sign that war had passed, except that the villages were empty.

Then would come a town or village that had been a target. Perhaps one building, perhaps a street, would be in flattened ruins. This was chiefly the work of the dive bombers, striking with deadly accuracy, to knock out a defense nest and clear the way for the clanking tanks.

That is why the blitzkrieg has done in days what the Kaiser's army did in weeks.

annual mark of 50,000, as recommended by Mr. Roosevelt.

The belief at first was that aviation would require considerable help, and government plans already were being drafted to make it available. The steel and oil industries have indicated that they can speed up to meet any demands, and the same is believed true of the automotive plants.

Major Gen. Henry H. Arnold, army air corps chief, told the house military committee that a 50,000-plane force would cost more than $3,500,000,000 to build. He also disclosed plans for four new pilot training centers, to handle 1,200 fledglings annually.

Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, said that the army's immediate aim was an air arm of 10,000 planes. Its present legal limit is 6,000.

President Roosevelt asked congress to vote $2,000,000 for a new airplane engine research laboratory.

Meanwhile, the senate naval appropriations subcommittee arranged to consider President Roosevelt's request for $250,000,000 additional to speed up the navy's warship construction program in addition to a $963,000,000 regular navy appropriation.

Roosevelt, Landon Will Talk Defense Tomorrow.

WASHINGTON—(INS)— Former Governor Alf M. Landon, Republican standard-bearer in 1936, will lunch with President Roosevelt at the White House tomorrow, as originally planned.

The telephone call from the White House which halted Landon's trip east to keep the engagement was all a mistake.

There was a distinct flurry around the White House this morning when Landon announced from Chicago that he was "returning to Topeka at the request of my president," after having been invited to lunch with Mr. Roosevelt tomorrow in line with the administration policy of solidifying national defense plans along non-partisan lines.

Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early explained after consultation with his chief, that Mr. Roosevelt had called Landon personally in Chicago this morning to explain that an earlier call through subordinates postponing the luncheon should be ignored.

FRANCE HOUSES MORE REFUGEES

Over 3,000,000 Pour Into Central And Southern Provinces.

PARIS—(U.P.)—Endless rivers of refugees—already officially estimated at more than 3,000,000 persons—poured into central and southern France today.

A large number were old people and children, seeking any haven from the war. France, already burdened with Spanish war refugees and German exiles, was assimilating the new streams and providing for their immediate wants with amazing efficiency.

Off to a New Start

PROUD AND HAPPY, they face a new life together... and out in front stands a beautiful new Plymouth waiting to carry them away!

"New Life" and "New Plymouth" go together well. For here is a car that lifts you out of the ordinary ...gives you a new start in motoring enjoyment.

Just step into a 1940 Plymouth and you'll see how true that is. There's a distinctive smartness to the car...new luxury, new roominess and comfort everywhere. The velvety smoothness and eager power of Plymouth's big, six-cylinder engine—the smooth response of the double-action hydraulic brakes give you an utterly new sense of power and control.

And there's a good reason for that feeling—good reason this Plymouth is so different. For Plymouth is the one low-priced car most like the high-priced cars!

It's the biggest of "All 3" low-priced cars; its 117-inch wheelbase is 4 inches longer than one, 5 inches longer than the other. And even the lowest-priced Plymouth has coiled springs of Amola Steel—Super-finished engine parts for smoothness and long life!

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, MAY 21, 1940.

You'll feel better if you give something to the Red Cross war relief fund.

The present brand of spring has the appearance of being much more dependable.

If parking meters can be rigged up so that a few marbles are seen hitting pegs there will probably be less objection to them.

Many Ideas About Defense Needs

OUT of the maze of divergent opinions being expressed about a defense program for the United States, with allowance for partisan bias, preconceived ideas, ultra-pacifism, selfishly motivated war mongering and a degree of public hysteria, it is difficult to sift enough facts to warrant even reasonably sound conclusions.

Some phases of the situation appear so obvious, however, as to justify general acceptance and warrant immediate action.

It has been a habit of the American people to take peace for granted and to assume that preachment of world peace would finally result in universal acceptance of this fine ideal.

But the present holocaust in Europe and the earlier invasion of China by Japan provide convincing evidence that the traditional causes of war have not yet been removed and that adequate readiness for defense is the only assurance against aggression.

Approval has been accorded President Roosevelt's suggestion that more than a billion dollars be appropriated and expended as quickly as possible in strengthening United States defenses, but the question is naturally raised as to what will be accomplished by such a relatively small expenditure, in the absence of definite plans and with apparently little knowledge of real needs.

There is marked variance of views on the talk given by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh Sunday night, but there could be no quibbling over his contention that "until we have decided on a definite policy of defense, the mere construction of large numbers of aircraft will not be adequate for our national safety."

Also worthy of thought was Col. Lindbergh's assertion: "Our danger in America is an internal danger. We need not fear a foreign invasion unless American peoples bring it on through their own quarreling and meddling with affairs abroad."

What appears to be most needed in the United States just now is a sensible approach to the real needs for adequate defense, freed from the considerations of party politics, selfish interests, military and pacifist extremists and "fifth column" propagandists.

Opportunity for immediate application of better defensive measures may be found in support of the Dies committee and the FBI in their attempts to rid this country of the subversive influence of alien groups working toward the overthrow of American democracy.

Durability is Important Factor

EVEN after many years of experimenting with various types of street paving it appears that Mansfield officials are still uncertain as to materials that are best suited to different traffic requirements and least likely to require frequent repairs and early replacement.

The present belated controversy as to materials to be used on the West Fourth street re-paving job seems to hinge largely on keen competition between brick and concrete interests, with a view to turning part of the business to each, rather than considering appearance and durability of the completed job.

As specified by the state highway department, this street's total width of 34 feet would have a 22-foot brick pavement in the middle, with 6-foot strips of concrete on each side, except that intersections are to be entirely in brick.

If the example of concrete breaking up when butted against brick, as is seen in the concrete strip which divides the brick on North Main street, indicates what may be expected from such an improvement of West Fourth street, the outlook for a long-wearing pavement of that kind is not bright.

It is now said that any change from original specifications would result in delaying work on the project, yet, as council meets tonight to enact final legislation, some thought will naturally be given to probable durability of the West Fourth street improvement, with the least possible cost of upkeep—which has been a heavy expense on some of Mansfield's paved streets.

Tangible Form of Sympathy

SUPPORTING the appeal of the American Red Cross for contributions to be used in war relief work, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt said:

"We who do not dread the sound of an airplane overhead, who do not listen for the distant sound of guns and search our papers for lists of casualties, have much to be thankful for. Contributing to the Red Cross is one of the tangible ways in which we can show our appreciation for the blessings of this life and our sympathy for those who suffer."

The thought of the millions of refugees in Europe who have fled from the terror to one country after another, only to be driven on again and joined by new victims in the latest country attacked, is almost unbearable. The plight of frightened children, uprooted from all that happiness and sense of security so essential to the young, haunts the heart and imagination of every decent person. Mrs. Roosevelt is right: we need the chance to make tangible expression of our grief and sympathy as much as they need our help.

Nor do we forget our own needy in offering help in other lands. This rich nation has enough for both and can meet the need without cutting deeply into its expenditures for entertainment and luxuries.

Nourishing Food for Health

MANKIND was best nourished during the century from 1750 to 1850, says Dr. Robert S. Harris, assistant professor of biochemistry in Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Since that time, he explains, civilized man has sacrificed much by forsaking food with health-giving properties in favor of palate-pleasing refinements. He urges a return to the diet of our great-grandfathers, on the principle of "nourish and you shall flourish."

Many people, both doctors and laymen, have been suspecting something of the sort. It seems as if the more delicate and expensive food people eat, the more they decay physically, the more trouble they have with their teeth and stomachs, and so on. Yet it's hard for a generation of indoor people to go back to the rough fare recommended, even when it is possible to buy it.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — James F. Grady, a quiet-voiced fellow with wavy, pepper-and-salt hair, has started a revolution that's spreading to every government department. Before it's over, it probably will create more good will than all the pork barrel, relief and federal aid programs ever conceived.

What he's doing is showing the federal agencies how to streamline their correspondence; how to take out stuffed-shirt expressions, delete the $5 words, and turn out letters that sound like a pat on the back rather than the pompous high-handedness of some minor official who's so self-important he doesn't realize the taxpayer butters his bread.

* * *

Scarcely a Day.

IF YOU think this isn't important, ask your congressman. There are 2,300,000 pieces of government mail pouring out of Washington every day and it's estimated that 1,000,000 of these are personal letters. There isn't a day that government officials don't get complaints.

Often, it isn't the employe's fault, as in the case of the home owner who went into hiding when told his loan was to be reamortized and nearly fainted from relief when he found he was to be given 20 years to repay instead of ten.

After three years of working with government agents, Grady finds that even before any instructions in letter-writing have been given, their letters stack up favorably with those of most private industries.

Yet, in one department alone, he found examples of letters that were contradictory, insulting, commanding, impertinent, weakly apologetic, arbitrary, offensive, insincere, grudging, critical, petulant and indifferent.

* * *

Hoopskirts First.

ONE of the first things the letter writers learn is to get rid of the "hoopskirts": "Your letter was duly received. . . . We beg to advise that. . . . As of even date herewith. . . . Your letter of the 15th instant, ultimo, proximo. . . . I beg to hand you herewith. . . ." and so on and so on.

A by-product of Grady's program has been economy, but he doesn't emphasize that. In one agency a survey disclosed that letters cost 75 cents apiece to prepare and mail. If this average holds for the 1,000,000 a day that go out, that's $750,000 a day for Uncle Sam's Washington letters.

Grady became an expert on epistles by accident. An administrator in a California college, he was asked to assist in organization of the Land Bank office at Berkeley when it mushroomed almost over night from 50 to 1,400 employes. In coordinating the work, he found employes needed most some instruction in writing effective letters. Out of the conferences came Grady's plans for training and supervision. The Land Bank governor asked Grady to come to Washington as a special assistant. That was three years ago.

Since then, the demand for Grady has been far in excess of the supply. He has worked in the field for the Land Bank, in Farm Security, in the census bureau, weather bureau, and now is launched on circuit of other agriculture department agencies, starting with the soil conservation division. He has lecture courses at the American University. And he is co-author with Milton Hall of a book called "Writing Effective Government Letters."

If you get a letter from the government that sounds as if it came from an official in a Victorian counting house, or makes you wonder why you have to pay taxes for salaries for smart-alecky nincompoops, just be patient. The Grady revolution will get 'em yet.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Friday, May 21, 1920.

Fines up to $5 were being assessed for wrong parking and other violations of traffic regulations.

It was reported to police that several lockers at Y. M. C. A. had been robbed.

Surprise party was given at home of Miss Thelma Crawford, honoring Miss Mildred Lawrence, high school teacher.

Prof. P. D. Sherman of Oberlin gave dramatic reading at meeting of First Congregational Men's club.

Price paid for wheat dropped to $2.75 a bushel at Mansfield mills.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Tuesday, May 21, 1935.

Charles H. Stamm, jr., senior at Ohio State university, was initiated into the Sigma Gamma Epsilon, honorary engineer fraternity.

Announcement was made of the coming marriage of Jean Henkel Rogers to Sherman E. Johnson of Evanston, Ill., to be an event of June 10.

Two hundred and eight students of Senior high school were preparing for commencement week.

The second of a series of luncheon meetings planned by the water development committee of the C. of C. was held.

Son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wentz, 1066 Springmill street.

TODAY IN HISTORY

The Black Hawk war began on this date in 1831. It lasted over a year, and both Abraham Lincoln and Jefferson Davis served in the campaign.

"THANK HEAVEN IT ISN'T OUR HOUSE THAT'S ON FIRE"

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—There are some interesting points to consider in connection with Noel Coward's visit to this country at this time. The man who wrote "Cavalcade," "Private Lives" and "Tonight at 8:30" did not cross the Atlantic just for the ride.

The points to consider concern his present post with the British propaganda ministry in France, and the fact that he is rich and has sizable holdings and investments in this country.

For 15 years Mr. Coward has been writing books and plays, and most of them have made money. Of the million he is reputed to have earned, at least half of it was earned in this country. It has been a matter of pride with him that none of this money has been taken out of the country.

* * *

NOW England is at war and must look to the United States, through "cash" legislation, for a considerable portion of her war materials. There will come a time when Allied credits in this country will be exhausted. Coward's holdings, like the widow's mite, when added to the incomes of Laughton, Olivier, Brook, Leigh, Howard and innumerable other popular and high-salaried British actors and authors in this country, are certain to be enlisted in British credits. This is not a new move. It has been going on since the first days of the war. What arrangements his own government has made with him, and with his popular countrymen over here, is a guess.

It will be remembered that last September Charles Boyer, the French Apollo, hurried back to France to join his regiment when war was declared. Within a few weeks the man who has caused the hearts to flutter was in uniform. He was detailed to some prosaic chore that had something to do with counting army mules. This seemed rather absurd. The French government wisely considered that Boyer would serve his country better if his salary, a big one, were piling up credits in American dollars in this country. Therefore, Boyer hurried back to the U. S., more of a heart-flutterer than ever. He had been in the army. He had satisfied all questions as to his physical courage.

* * *

NOEL COWARD, it seems logical to conclude, here in a similar capacity. He brought along two new plays. These were turned over to his friend and manager, Mr. John C. Wilson. After a few days in Manhattan, he hurried on to Hollywood, where he has many friends and business interests. He will not remain long in this country—only a matter of a few weeks. Then he will return to his post in the propaganda ministry in Paris.

What is this post? When he bobbed up in his old haunts on Broadway all of the boys bombarded him with questions. . . . . Had he been bombed yet?... What sort of work was he doing?

Coward may have confided the nature of his duties to his intimates, but to his public he has remained pleasantly vague. He has, however, made it unmistakable that war has turned his life inside out, like a hastily removed sock. How? "Well, I have to be up, bathed, dressed, fed and at my desk by 9 a. m."

Plainly, if war has done this to Noel Coward, Sherman was right.

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

Seek ye the Lord while he may be found, call ye upon him while he is near.—Isaiah 55:6.

Health and Diet

Roughage as A Health Ally.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

What is meant by roughage in the diet and what is its function?

The vegetables and fruits which should make up over half the bulk of a well balanced diet contain a substance which may be called plant fiber, roughage or cellulose. This is not affected nor dissolved by the digestive fluids, so that after the digestion and absorption of other constituents it remains as a residue in the digestive tract to be excreted. But it is a very valuable constituent of the food. During digestion the food is propelled along the intestines by the rhythmical contraction of the intestinal muscles, and the undigested vegetable fibers, by giving bulk to the food, stimulate these contractions. The mass of vegetable fiber also acts as a mop and incorporates into its mass large numbers of bacteria alive or dead.

Ordinary absorbent cotton is an example of the cellular part of a plant. It is practically pure cellulose and the fibrous parts of edible vegetables, although interspersed with other substances, are chemically similar to cotton. If you rub a wad of wet cotton over a dirty window pane you get a good idea of what roughage does to contents of the intestine.

The percentage of cellulose in plants differs from about 1 to 3 per cent. Spinach contains 1.1 per cnet, celery 0.9 per cent, squash 1.3 per cent, lettuce 0.9 per cent, oranges 1.5 per cent, apples 1.2 per cent, bananas 1 per cent, and whole wheat bread 2.6 per cent.

This amount is obviously quite small, and yet such vegetables and fruits act very satisfactorily. When the cellulose part of foods is concentrated and given in bulk for laxative purposes—as in the form of agar, psyllium seed, bran and cellophane—they may or may not have such favorable results. In fact, in some individuals they may cause irritation which does more harm than good.

* * *

Does overwork produce nervous exhaustion.

Looking over hundreds of charts of experiments on fatigue and formulae and graphs of all kinds of works the conclusion is inevitable—mental work does not cause brain fag.

The great accomplishers in the world do not know what fatigue is.

"To what do better men owe their escape from fatigue?" wrote William James. "Men the world over possess amounts of resources which only the very exceptional push to their extremes of use. The same individual pushing his energies to their extreme, may, in a vast number of cases, keep up the pace and find no bad reaction."

Dr. Ira Wile says: "Unconditionally, there is no such thing as breaking down from overwork." And Dr. Allen F. Riggs: "Hard work, plenty of it, whether physical or mental, never in itself produced one single case of nervous exhaustion."

But I know a man who built up an enormous business by unremitting hard work. From the age of 25 to 65 he poured four men's energy and genius into it, and always felt like doing more. At 65 he retired. That was two years ago; he has been tired, as well as retired, ever since.

Timely Editorial

Danger of Pestilence

Despite all that science has accomplished in the control of disease, there is great danger that the vast concentration of troops in Europe will result in the outbreak of some plague or disease.

Pestilence is one of the horsemen that rides with war. Smallpox and typhoid, two of the earlier diseases which killed more men than bullets, are under control. However, there is always something else, and it wars alike against soldier and civilian.

Particular danger lies in the vast refugee camps, where great unwashed hordes of miserable human beings are ready prey for disease, which may quickly spread. The danger of a typhus epidemic is reported to be especially alarming. The last such epidemic of great proportions occurred in Russia in 1922-23, when out of 20,000,000 sufferers at least half died.

The influenza plague of 1917-18 which swept the face of the earth, reaching into the most remote and isolated spots, and claimed more than 20,000,000 victims, is recalled with shudders.—Ohio State Journal.

Ohio Anecdotes

An Ohioan Honored.

DENVER, Colorado is named for Ohioan James W. Denver, who grew up on his father's farm near Wilmington, O., on which his father settled after coming from their Virginia home in 1831.

Young Denver studied law and ran a newspaper at Xenia before moving west. In 1852, Governor Rigler of California placed Denver in charge of supply trains, which were created by the legislature to aid California-bound easterners.

Denver was efficient in his performance of the duties, but Edward Gilbert, a California editor, adversely criticized the project resulting in a duel between Gilbert and Denver in which Gilbert was killed.

Denver rose to a generalship in the army, and took active roles in political circles. In 1878 and 1884 he was frequently mentioned as presidential timber.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Only those around the White House knew it, but the president's $1,182,000,000 emergency defense program was only about one-third of that urged on him by his army and navy chiefs.

Their original program called for a total of $3,000,000,000, of which approximately $2,000,000,000 was for immediate expenditure; the rest to be authorizations for future outlays.

A large part of the additional money was proposed for expanding ship-building facilities and the construction of navy vessels already authorized, but for which no money has yet been voted. Another big chunk was for enlargement of plane building equipment by erecting government plants in strategic sections of the country.

These plants presumably would have built fighting planes under patent licenses from private owners. The plan was particularly designed to solve the "bottleneck" problem of large-scale production of airplane motors.

Roosevelt vetoed these and other proposals on the ground that they would lead to congressional controversy, thereby delay the urgent phases of the program. He thought the wisest course was to confine the program to items most needed and get them started immediately. Later the situation could be re-examined, he said, and a new program formulated if necessary.

That is the background for the cryptic statement in his message, "I will not hesitate to call the Congress into special session if at any time the situation of the national defense requires it."

* * *

Training Centers.

ALTHOUGH Roosevelt did not go into details, the bulk of the money is intended for aerial defenses—fighting planes as well as anti-aircraft weapons. In other words, the funds will be used to lay the groundwork for the vast air force of 50,000 planes that he envisioned.

High on the list is the immediate construction of five new army pilot training centers. At present the army has only one such school, Randolph Field, Ill.

Under the accelerated program initiated last fall, Randolph is turning out 2400 pilots a year as compared to 500 previously. With five more schools the expected output would be about 12,000 pilots annually.

* * *

Under the Dome.

THE PRESIDENT'S right-hand aide during the three hectic days of drafting the defense program was Secretary Harry Hopkins. He moved to the White House and, like Roosevelt, stayed up one night until 3 a. m. . . . One thing that struck Roosevelt forcibly during delivery of his message to congress was the silence of the Republican side. A number of Republican senators, sitting in the front rows, joined in the applause, but the representatives did not. One exception was Representative James Wadsworth of New York. . . . Going down the house elevator to his car, the president commented on this to members of the White House staff. . . . Three senators who did not join in the applause when Roosevelt entered were Hiram Johnson of California, Harry Byrd of Virginia, and Holman of Oregon.

* * *

Hemisphere Defense.

THESE are days when the United States is supposed to be bending every effort to coordinate the defense of the Western Hemisphere; days when President Roosevelt impresses upon congress the vulnerability of the Panama Canal and Latin America to airplane attack.

Boiled down to cold fact, however, the United States has done very little toward cooperating with Latin America on Western Hemisphere defense.

For instance, four years ago Brazil asked the United States to permit the leasing or sale to South American neighbors of decrepit destroyers rusting in Philadelphia and San Francisco harbors since the World war. But congress threw up its hands in horror of rearmament and said No.

Then in March, 1939, a bill was introduced in congress permitting Latin American nations to build ships in U. S. navy yards and buy certain equipment from the U. S. army and navy which would not conflict with our own national defense—all paid for in cash.

The bill passed the house of representatives but hung up in the senate. And there it still hangs. In fact, it has been stymied for a year by only one senator.

* * *

Criticism.

LAST SUMMER, just before congress adjourned, when the bill was about to come up in the senate, Senator Vandenberg objected. He even threatened to filibuster if the administration tried to pass the bill. So the senate adjourned.

At this session, the Pan-American defense bill is on the senate unanimous consent calendar. And every time it comes up, Vandenberg objects.

Meanwhile Latin American nations, not understanding the American parliamentary system by which one man sometimes can thwart the rest of congress, criticize the United States for talking Western Hemisphere defense but giving absolutely no co-operation toward it.

Note—The senate foreign relations committee also has buried the Argentine sanitary convention which permits the entry of dressed lamb from Patagonia, the Antarctic end of Argentina, where hoof and mouth disease does not exist. Ratification of this treaty would mean the purchase of only a small driblet of lamb by this country, but politically would mean a tremendous boost in Argentine friendship for the United States.

FATEFUL FIGURES

A numerological digest of the careers of Europe's strong men is going the rounds on Capitol Hill, and creating a lot of interest:

	Mussolini	Stalin	Hitler
Born	1883	1879	1889
Came to power	1922	1924	1933
Years in power	18	16	7
Age	57	61	51
Total	3880	3880	3880
Divided by two	1940	1940	1940

Note—Though this seems to be a startling coincidence, it isn't. Anyone's age added to the year of his birth naturally equalls this year, 1940. Likewise the year anyone took office plus the number of years he has spent in office equals 1940. The two together always would be twice 1940, or 3880. Next year the result will be 1941. Try it on yourself.

Evenings Out

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

PERHAPS we are selfish, but my wife and I do not enjoy taking our children to clubs, fairs or social gatherings in the evening. On rare occasions, fortified with naps in the afternoon, our little boys have acquitted themselves creditably until a late hour. We know it can be done, and that many farmer folk take their young children everywhere they go themselves.

Their children, too, grow and thrive, and get over with children's diseases younger than ours do, perhaps. But it seems to us, with lots of rest and sleep, our children will be apt to enjoy long social evenings after they are grown, when we, perhaps, are gone.

On the rare occasions when we spend an evening out, we much prefer to come home to a quiet house where the children are asleep in their own beds, rather than to carry in two or three overtired, overstuffed, overstimulated youngsters who must then be coaxed, tearfully, into their pajamas.

This matter of going or staying is largely habit. Children do right well at putting up with parents as they are. A musical or a lecture means more to us than it does to them. They would prefer a new game at home, or even a bag of candy.

My wife, who is with the house and the tots all day, needs the restful change of an occasional evening off. I needs must accompany her. We frequently slip away for an hour or two after supper. It's just our way. The children take it in their stride.

We tried attending movies with them a few times, before we had so many. Invariably the picture was almost a total loss. After several years' experience, we have come to our present plan. Our whole family goes for week-end drives and picnics, whenever possible. On such occasions the children often dictate where we go and how we spend the time. Within limits, they decide what sort of edible treat we shall enjoy.

But evenings are different. Those are for older folks. We trust we are not too unkind in keeping them, largely, for our own.

Twelve Indicted In $1,000,000 'Front Money' Fraud

FEDERAL JURY CHARGES MAILS USED IN SCHEME

Cleveland, Youngstown Men Are Named In Connection With 'Advance Fee' Racket.

(By United Press)

CLEVELAND — Twelve men were indicted by a federal grand jury on mail fraud charges today in connection with an alleged nationwide "front money" racket said to have mulched business men of $1,000,000.

The true bill named Bernard B. Gross, Chicago; Paul E. Reinhardt and C. Wayne Gould, Los Angeles; Samuel L. Lewis, Edward Schofs, Arthur L. Rose, Rowland S. Mott, Victor De Villiers, W. M. Harvey and William H. Gould, all of New York City; Carl J. Barth, Cleveland, and Edward M. Hill, Youngstown, O.

The "front money" or "advance-fee" racket has been under investigation for months by the post-office department, the securities and exchange commission and the department of justice, according to U. S. Attorney Emerich B. Freed, to whom cases from all parts of the country have been entrusted for prosecution.

The basis of the racket is the persuasion of firms and individuals to pay a multitude of advance fees on the promise that new capital would be obtained for them. The victims have been a great variety of small enterprises whose operations were unfamiliar with securities statutes.

"This is the first real break we have had in a drive to clean up a racket which has victimized honest business, particularly small business, in many parts of the country," SEC Chairman Jerome N. Frank said. "It is my hope that in the future business men will consult responsible local bankers before becoming entangled in these schemes."

Push Efforts to Raise $4,000 War Relief Fund Here

Workers in the Red Cross drive to raise $4,000 in Mansfield on Richland county's $6,000 quota for war relief, renewed their efforts this morning after a cablegram from Red Cross representative in Paris told of conditions there.

The drive opened yesterday in Mansfield and throughout the county and while no reports were made by county workers, Mansfield had subscribed $229 up to this noon. This was in volunteer subscriptions given at the chapter office and did not include contributions obtained by workers.

Wayne Chatfield Taylor, American Red Cross representative in Paris, said in a cablegram to national headquarters today that while the army in France is fighting for its life, thousands of homeless refugees from Belgium are flocking into France, already concerned with its own tragic problems.

He said they arrive on foot, by wagon, in trucks, trains and even by bicycle; that some are wounded, some sick, all hungry, terrified and exhausted. They bring with them nothing except the clothes on their backs and sometimes a few sentimental trinkets. Government agencies, Taylor said, of France and Belgium, with the help of Red Cross, are attempting to give assistance. The problem becomes more acute daily, he said, as the refugees continue to come.

D. O. Meese, general chairman of the Red Cross drive for funds, said today that several large contributions have been obtained by workers and he is certain that the drive can be finished by Saturday night.

ELECTS OFFICERS

George Williams Hi-Y Club Names Myron Miller President.

Myron Miller was elected president of the George Williams Hi-Y club at a meeting at the Y. M. C. A. last night. He succeeds Robert Boals.

Other officers chosen are Lynn McCorquodale, vice president, Robert Curry, secretary, John Sprotsy, treasurer, and Arden Shambaugh, sergeant-at-arms. The new officers will take office at the beginning of school next fall.

EXTEND PLAN

Officials Discuss Use of Auto Industry for Plane Building.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The automobile industry may be called upon to help speed a 50,000 warplane program estimated to cost $7,000,000,00 (B), official quarters suggested today.

Government experts said that it might be feasible for automobile manufacturers to use part of the facilities and manpower for production of airplane engines.

FOURTH VICTIM

DAYTON—(AP)—Typhoid fever claimed a fourth victim among persons attending a railway employes' banquet here April 3. Jesse W. Humston, 52, of nearby Trotwood, died last night. His widow is ill with the same disease. City health authorities said victims apparently contracted the fever at the banquet.

Prospect School Fathers, Sons Meet With Officials.

Preliminary plans to organize a Cub pack at Prospect school were outlined at a meeting of 80 fathers and sons in the Prospect district at the school last night.

Cubbing is a part of the Boy Scout movement, and is open to boys who are too young to become members of a scout troop. The movement was outlined to the fathers by Floyd Dent, area scout executive. The program also included several reels of motion pictures.

AGRICULTURE OF OHIO DEPICTED

Oil Company Shows Film on 'Ohio's Good Earth' At Rotary Meeting.

Agriculture's prominent place in contributing to the prosperity of Ohio was pictured at today's meeting of the Rotary club through the medium of color and sound films presented by the Standard Oil company.

"Ohio's Good Earth" was the title of a film which showed the diversity of farm products in this state and also the high development of the live stock industry. Modern methods of farming were also shown, as necessary to cultivation of the 23,000,000 acres of Ohio land devoted to agriculture.

John B. Coleman was program chairman for the meeting and the films were presented under direction of Fred Cassell and James VanBlarcum.

Visiting Rotarians were C. O. Long, of Ft. Wayne, Ind., and Fred E. Snedecoir, Corono, Calif.

At the annual election of officers of the club, for the year starting July 1, Clifford G. Hillier was chosen as president and Robert C. Remy, vice president. Walter W. Willis was re-elected secretary-treasurer. Newly elected members of the board of directors are William C. Mead and Fred L. Tracy.

DRAW FINES

Police Raid on Residence Ends In Arrest of 5.

Four men, two of them colored, were arraigned before Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch in municipal court this morning on charges of intoxication filed after police had raided the home of Mamie Smith, 251 North Adams street, last night.

A total of eleven men, three of them colored, were taken into custody during the raid.

Police said all of them were drinking cider and a quantity of cider was confiscated. The Smith woman, colored, was charged with maintaining a disorderly house. Four of the men were charged with intoxication and the others were dismissed.

The woman was fined $75 and costs and committed to county jail until it is paid. The men were all fined $5 and costs.

Of four other men arrested on the street for intoxication and arraigned this morning only one received a fine of more than $5 and costs. He was Frank Foley, arrested on a state affidavit because he has been arrested for intoxication three times since April 18. He received a fine of $25 and costs and wos committed to county jail.

STUDIES COURSE IN AIRPLANE MECHANICS FOR SENIOR HIGH

At a meeting o the Mansfield board of education last night, Dr. John S. Hattery, vice president of the board, recommended that a course providing instruction for aviation tool makers be added to the vocational curriculum at Senior high school.

The board took no action on the suggestion, but members indicated they favored it. W. L. Miller, superintendent of schools, said he would ask the state department of education if such an arrangement is possible under the state-aid program and whether there will be federal funds available to help finance the course.

"It is almost certain that the lack of skilled tool makers and aviation mechanics will be the bottle neck in the government's air defense program, and there's no reason why boys shouldn't have the chance to learn the trade and get jobs," Dr. Hattery said.

Pupils can obtain training in automobile mechanics now at Senior high school, but there is no course that would equip them for work in aviation either as a plane builder or mechanic.

Supt. Miller said he was not certain whether instructors now employed in the high school vocational department are qualified to teach tool making and aviation mechanics.

If other instructors would have to be hired, government funds provided through some kind of subsidy must be available to pay them, he added.

CAPTURE O. S. R. FUGITIVES NEAR LEXINGTON, KY.

Armed Pair Surrender as Police Find Them In Auto on Highway.

Two of the three inmates who escaped from the Mansfield reformatory last Tuesday were captured last night on a rural road near Lexington, Ky., an Associated Press dispatch from Lexington said today.

Kentucky authorities said the pair identified themselves as Milburn Riley, 23, Hamilton, O., and Wilbur Gruver, 21, of Marion, who were serving terms for auto theft.

Everett Collins, 18, of Warren county, third member of the group, is still at large.

An automobile stolen from near Shelby and believed to be the one which the youths used to flee south was found at Hamilton last Saturday night. The car belonged to Glenn Artz.

Authorities said Riley and Gruver offered no resistance when they were captured last night although they carried guns in their automobile which they said was stolen from a Hamilton garage.

RELIEF BILL CUT

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The state's April relief bill was set at $2,121,921 today by State Welfare Directors Charles L. Sherwood, who reported that this was approximately $230,000 less than in March. Sherwood allocated $750,000, or 35.5 per cent of the total as the state's share.

FORECASTS RAIN, COOL WEATHER

Weatherman Predicts Showers, Cooler Temperature.

Enjoy your taste of spring weather while you can—for tomorrow the temperature goes down again.

Perhaps it won't be top coat weather as it was last week, but it will be cooler and "scattered showers" are predicted for tonight and tomorrow.

Yesterday's high on the thermometer was 74, with a low of 44. There was a sprinkle of rain late yesterday afternoon. Today it was up to 76 by noon and gave promise of going higher.

MEETS TONIGHT

Council Expected to Settle W. 4th Paving Problems.

Definite settlement of problems growing out of the West Fourth street paving project was expected tonight when city council meets in special session.

Type of construction and city appropriations necessary to get the paving program under way are questions expected to be settled.

Drawn up last winter, plans of the state highway department call for a pavement of brick and concrete construction.

Since then, proposals have been made for an all-brick surface and one suggestion of a hot-mix" asphalt surface was made.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, MAY 21, 1940.

You'll feel better if you give something to the Red Cross war relief fund.

The present brand of spring has the appearance of being much more dependable.

If parking meters can be rigged up so that a few marbles are seen hitting pegs there will probably be less objection to them.

Many Ideas About Defense Needs

OUT of the maze of divergent opinions being expressed about a defense program for the United States, with allowance for partisan bias, preconceived ideas, ultra-pacifism, selfishly motivated war mongering and a degree of public hysteria, it is difficult to sift enough facts to warrant even reasonably sound conclusions.

Some phases of the situation appear so obvious, however, as to justify general acceptance and warrant immediate action.

It has been a habit of the American people to take peace for granted and to assume that preachment of world peace would finally result in universal acceptance of this fine ideal.

But the present holocaust in Europe and the earlier invasion of China by Japan provide convincing evidence that the traditional causes of war have not yet been removed and that adequate readiness for defense is the only assurance against aggression.

Approval has been accorded President Roosevelt's suggestion that more than a billion dollars be appropriated and expended as quickly as possible in strengthening United States defenses, but the question is naturally raised as to what will be accomplished by such a relatively small expenditure, in the absence of definite plans and with apparently little knowledge of real needs.

There is marked variance of views on the talk given by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh Sunday night, but there could be no quibbling over his contention that "until we have decided on a definite policy of defense, the mere construction of large numbers of aircraft will not be adequate for our national safety."

Also worthy of thought was Col. Lindbergh's assertion: 'Our danger in America is an internal danger. We need not fear a foreign invasion unless American peoples bring it on through their own quarreling and meddling with affairs abroad."

What appears to be most needed in the United States just now is a sensible approach to the real needs for adequate defense, freed from the considerations of party politics, selfish interests, military and pacifist extremists and "fifth column" propagandists.

Opportunity for immediate application of better defensive measures may be found in support of the Dies committee and the FBI in their attempts to rid this country of the subversive influence of alien groups working toward the overthrow of American democracy.

Durability is Important Factor

EVEN after many years of experimenting with various types of street paving it appears that Mansfield officials are still uncertain as to materials that are best suited to different traffic requirements and least likely to require frequent repairs and early replacement.

The present belated controversy as to materials to be used on the West Fourth street re-paving job seems to hinge largely on keen competition between brick and concrete interests, with a view to turning part of the business to each, rather than considering appearance and durability of the completed job.

As specified by the state highway department, this street's total width of 34 feet would have a 22-foot brick pavement in the middle, with 6-foot strips of concrete on each side, except that intersections are to be entirely in brick.

If the example of concrete breaking up when butted against brick, as is seen in the concrete strip which divides the brick on North Main street, indicates what may be expected from such an improvement of West Fourth street, the outlook for a long-wearing pavement of that kind is not bright.

It is now said that any change from original specifications would result in delaying work on the project, yet, as council meets tonight to enact final legislation, some thought will naturally be given to probable durability of the West Fourth street improvement, with the least possible cost of upkeep—which has been a heavy expense on some of Mansfield's paved streets.

Tangible Form of Sympathy

SUPPORTING the appeal of the American Red Cross for contributions to be used in war relief work, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt said:

"We who do not dread the sound of an airplane overhead, who do not listen for the distant sound of guns and search our papers for lists of casualties, have much to be thankful for. Contributing to the Red Cross is one of the tangible ways in which we can show our appreciation for the blessings of this life and our sympathy for those who suffer."

The thought of the millions of refugees in Europe who have fled from the terror to one country after another, only to be driven on again and joined by new victims in the latest country attacked, is almost unbearable. The plight of frightened children, uprooted from all that happiness and sense of security so essential to the young, haunts the heart and imagination of every decent person. Mrs. Roosevelt is right: we need the chance to make tangible expression of our grief and sympathy as much as they need our help.

Nor do we forget our own needy in offering help in other lands. This rich nation has enough for both and can meet the need without cutting deeply into its expenditures for entertainment and luxuries.

Nourishing Food for Health

MANKIND was best nourished during the century from 1750 to 1850, says Dr. Robert S. Harris, assistant professor of biochemistry in Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Since that time, he explains, civilized man has sacrificed much by forsaking food with health-giving properties in favor of palate-pleasing refinements. He urges a return to the diet of our great-grandfathers, on the principle of "nourish and you shall flourish."

Many people, both doctors and laymen, have been suspecting something of the sort. It seems as if the more delicate and expensive food people eat, the more they decay physically, the more trouble they have with their teeth and stomachs, and so on. Yet it's hard for a generation of indoor people to go back to the rough fare recommended, even when it is possible to buy it.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — James F. Grady, a quiet-voiced fellow with wavy, pepper-and-salt hair, has started a revolution that's spreading to every government department. Before it's over, it probably will create more good will than all the pork barrel, relief and federal aid programs ever conceived.

What he's doing is showing the federal agencies how to streamline their correspondence; how to take out stuffed-shirt expressions, delete the $5 words, and turn out letters that sound like a pat on the back rather than the pompous high-handedness of some minor official who's so self-important he doesn't realize the taxpayer butters his bread.

* * *

Scarcely a Day.

IF YOU think this isn't important, ask your congressman. There are 2,300,000 pieces of government mail pouring out of Washington every day and it's estimated that 1,000,000 of these are personal letters. There isn't a day that government officials don't get complaints.

Often, it isn't the employe's fault, as in the case of the home owner who went into hiding when told his loan was to be reamortized and nearly fainted from relief when he found he was to be given 20 years to repay instead of ten.

After three years of working with government agents, Grady finds that even before any instructions in letter-writing have been given, their letters stack up favorably with those of most private industries.

Yet, in one department alone, he found examples of letters that were contradictory, insulting, commanding, impertinent, weakly apologetic, arbitrary, offensive, insincere, grudging, critical, petulant and indifferent.

* * *

Hoopskirts First.

ONE of the first things the letter writers learn is to get rid of the "hoopskirts": "Your letter was duly received. . . . We beg to advise that. . . . As of even date herewith. . . . Your letter of the 15th instant, ultimo, proximo. . . . I beg to hand you herewith. . . ." and so on and so on.

A by-product of Grady's program has been economy, but he doesn't emphasize that. In one agency a survey disclosed that letters cost 75 cents apiece to prepare and mail. If this average holds for the 1,000,000 a day that go out, that's $750,000 a day for Uncle Sam's Washington letters.

Grady became an expert on epistles by accident. An administrator in a California college, he was asked to assist in organization of the Land Bank office at Berkeley when it mushroomed almost over night from 50 to 1,400 employes. In coordinating the work, he found employes needed most some instruction in writing effective letters. Out of the conferences came Grady's plans for training and supervision. The Land Bank governor asked Grady to come to Washington as a special assistant. That was three years ago.

Since then, the demand for Grady has been far in excess of the supply. He has worked in the field for the Land Bank, in Farm Security, in the census bureau, weather bureau, and now is launched on circuit of other agriculture department agencies, starting with the soil conservation division. He has lecture courses at the American University. And he is co-auther with Milton Hall of a book called "Writing Effective Government Letters."

If you get a letter from the government that sounds as if it came from an official in a Victorian counting house, or makes you wonder why you have to pay taxes for salaries for smart-alecky nincompoops, just be patient. The Grady revolution will get 'em yet.

"THANK HEAVEN IT ISN'T OUR HOUSE THAT'S ON FIRE"

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—There are some interesting points to consider in connection with Noel Coward's visit to this country at this time. The man who wrote "Cavalcade," "Private Lives" and "Tonight at 8:30" did not cross the Atlantic just for the ride.

The points to consider concern his present post with the British propaganda ministry in France, and the fact that he is rich and has sizable holdings and investments in this country.

For 15 years Mr. Coward has been writing books and plays, and most of them have made money. Of the million he is reputed to have earned, at least half of it was earned in this country. It has been a matter of pride with him that none of this money has been taken out of the country.

* * *

NOW England is at war and must look to the United States, through "cash" legislation, for a considerable portion of her war materials. There will come a time when Allied credits in this country will be exhausted. Coward's holdings, like the widow's mite, when added to the incomes of Laughton, Olivier, Brook, Leigh, Howard and innumerable other popular and high-salaried British actors and authors in this country, are certain to be enlisted in British credits. This is not a new move. It has been going on since the first days of the war. What arrangements his own government has made with him, and with his popular countrymen over here, is a guess.

It will be remembered that last September Charles Boyer, the French Apollo, hurried back to France to join his regiment when war was declared. Within a few weeks the man who has caused the hearts to flutter was in uniform. He was detailed to some prosaic chore that had something to do with counting army mules. This seemed rather absurd. The French government wisely considered that Boyer would serve his country better if his salary, a big one, were piling up credits in American dollars in this country. Therefore, Boyer hurried back to the U. S., more of a heart-flutterer than ever. He had been in the army. He had satisfied all questions as to his physical courage.

* * *

NOEL COWARD, it seems logical to conclude, is here in a similar capacity. He brought along two new plays. These were turned over to his friend and manager, Mr. John C. Wilson. After a few days in Manhattan, he hurried on to Hollywood, where he has many friends and business interests. He will not remain long in this country—only a matter of a few weeks. Then he will return to his post in the propaganda ministry in Paris.

What is this post? When he bobbed up in his old haunts on Broadway all of the boys bombarded him with questions. . . . Had he been bombed yet? . . . What sort of work was he doing?

Coward may have confided the nature of his duties to his intimates, but to his public he has remained pleasantly vague. He has, however, made it unmistakable that war has turned his life inside out, like a hastily removed sock. How? "Well, I have to be up, bathed, dressed, fed and at my desk by 9 a. m."

Plainly, if war has done this to Noel Coward, Sherman was right.

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

Seek ye the Lord while he may be found, call ye upon him while he is near.—Isaiah 55:6.

Health and Diet

Roughage as A Health Ally.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

What is meant by roughage in the diet and what is its function?

The vegetables and fruits which should make up over half the bulk of a well balanced diet contain a substance which may be called plant fiber, roughage or cellulose. This is not affected nor dissolved by the digestive fluids, so that after the digestion and absorption of other constituents it remains as a residue in the digestive tract to be excreted. But it is a very valuable constituent of the food. During digestion the food is propelled along the intestines by the rhythmical contraction of the intestinal muscles, and the undigested vegetable fibers, by giving bulk to the food, stimulate these contractions. The mass of vegetable fiber also acts as a mop and incorporates into its mass large numbers of bacteria alive or dead.

Ordinary absorbent cotton is an example of the cellular part of a plant. It is practically pure cellulose and the fibrous parts of edible vegetables, although interspersed with other substances, are chemically similar to cotton. If you rub a wad of wet cotton over a dirty window pane you get a good idea of what roughage does to contents of the intestine.

The percentage of cellulose in plants differs from about 1 to 3 per cent. Spinach contains 1.1 per cnet, celery 0.9 per cent, squash 1.3 per cent, lettuce 0.9 per cent, oranges 1.5 per cent, apples 1.2 per cent, bananas 1 per cent, and whole wheat bread 2.6 per cent.

This amount is obviously quite small, and yet such vegetables and fruits act very satisfactorily. When the cellulose part of foods is concentrated and given in bulk for laxative purposes—as in the form of agar, psyllium seed, bran and cellophane—they may or may not have such favorable results. In fact, in some individuals they may cause irritation which does more harm than good.

Does overwork produce nervous exhaustion.

Looking over hundreds of charts of experiments on fatigue and formulae and graphs of all kinds of works the conclusion is inevitable—mental work does not cause brain fag.

The great accomplishers in the world do not know what fatigue is.

"To what do better men owe their escape from fatigue?" wrote William James. "Men the world over possess amounts of resources which only the very exceptional push to their extremes of use. The same individual pushing his energies to their extreme, may, in a vast number of cases, keep up the pace and find no bad reaction."

Dr. Ira Wile says: "Unconditionally, there is no such thing as breaking down from overwork." And Dr. Allen F. Riggs: "Hard work, plenty of it, whether physical or mental, never in itself produced one single case of nervous exhaustion."

But I know a man who built up an enormous business by unremitting hard work. From the age of 25 to 65 he poured four men's energy and genius into it, and always felt like doing more. At 65 he retired. That was two years ago; he has been tired, as well as retired, ever since.

Danger of Pestilence

Despite all that science has accomplished in the control of disease, there is great danger that the vast concentration of troops in Europe will result in the outbreak of some plague or disease.

Pestilence is one of the horsemen that rides with war. Smallpox and typhoid, two of the earlier diseases which killed more men than bullets, are under control. However, there is always something else, and it wars alike against soldier and civilian.

Particular danger lies in the vast refugee camps, where great unwashed hordes of miserable human beings are ready prey for disease, which may quickly spread. The danger of a typhus epidemic is reported to be especially alarming. The last such epidemic of great proportions occurred in Russia in 1922-23, when out of 20,000,000 sufferers at least half died.

The influenza plague of 1917-18 which swept the face of the earth, reaching into the most remote and isolated spots, and claimed more than 20,000,000 victims, is recalled with shudders. — Ohio State Journal.

Ohio Anecdotes

An Ohioan Honored.

DENVER, Colorado is named for Ohioan James W. Denver, who grew up on his father's farm near Wilmington, O., on which his father settled after coming from their Virginia home in 1831.

Young Denver studied law and ran a newspaper at Xenia before moving west. In 1852, Governor Rigler of California placed Denver in charge of supply trains, which were created by the legislature to aid California-bound easterners.

Denver was efficient in his performance of the duties, but Edward Gilbert, a California editor, adversely criticized the project resulting in a duel between Gilbert and Denver in which Gilbert was killed.

Denver rose to a generalship in the army, and took active roles in political circles. In 1878 and 1884 he was frequently mentioned as presidential timber.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Only those around the White House knew it, but the president's $1,182,000,000 emergency defense program was only about one-third of that urged on him by his army and navy chiefs.

Their original program called for a total of $3,000,000,000, of which approximately $2,000,000,000 was for immediate expenditure; the rest to be authorizations for future outlays.

A large part of the additional money was proposed for expanding ship-building facilities and the construction of navy vessels already authorized, but for which no money has yet been voted. Another big chunk was for enlargement of plane building equipment by erecting government plants in strategic sections of the country.

These plants presumably would have built fighting planes under patent licenses from private owners. The plan was particularly designed to solve the "bottleneck" problem of large-scale production of airplane motors.

Roosevelt vetoed these and other proposals on the ground that they would lead to congressional controversy, thereby delay the urgent phases of the program. He thought the wisest course was to confine the program to items most needed and get them started immediately. Later the situation could be re-examined, he said, and a new program formulated if necessary.

That is the background for the cryptic statement in his message, "I will not hesitate to call the Congress into special session if at any time the situation of the national defense requires it."

* * *

Training Centers.

ALTHOUGH Roosevelt did not go into details, the bulk of the money is intended for aerial defenses—fighting planes as well as anti-aircraft weapons. In other words, the funds will be used to lay the groundwork for the vast air force of 50,000 planes that he envisioned.

High on the list is the immediate construction of five new army pilot training centers. At present the army has only one such school, Randolph Field, Ill.

Under the accelerated program initiated last fall, Randolph is turning out 2400 pilots a year as compared to 500 previously. With five more schools the expected output would be about 12,000 pilots annually.

* * *

Under the Dome.

THE PRESIDENT'S right-hand aide during the three hectic days of drafting the defense program was Secretary Harry Hopkins. He moved to the White House and, like Roosevelt, stayed up one night until 3 a. m. . . . One thing that struck Roosevelt forcibly during delivery of his message to congress was the silence of the Republican side. A number of Republican senators, sitting in the front rows, joined in the applause, but the representatives did not. One exception was Representative James Wadsworth of New York. . . . Going down the house elevator to his car, the president commented on this to members of the White House staff. . . . Three senators who did not join in the applause when Roosevelt entered were Hiram Johnson of California, Harry Byrd of Virginia, and Holman of Oregon.

* * *

Hemisphere Defense.

THESE are days when the United States is supposed to be bending every effort to coordinate the defense of the Western Hemisphere: days when President Roosevelt impresses upon congress the vulnerability of the Panama Canal and Latin America to airplane attack.

Boiled down to cold fact, however, the United States has done very little toward cooperating with Latin America on Western Hemisphere defense.

For instance, four years ago Brazil asked the United States to permit the leasing or sale to South American neighbors of decrepit destroyers rusting in Philadelphia and San Francisco harbors since the World war. But congress threw up its hands in horror of rearmament and said No.

Then in March, 1939, a bill was introduced in congress permitting Latin American nations to build ships in U. S. navy yards and buy certain equipment from the U. S. army and navy which would not conflict with our own national defense—all paid for in cash.

The bill passed the house of representatives but hung up in the senate. And there it still hangs. In fact, it has been stymied for a year by only one senator.

* * *

Criticism.

LAST SUMMER, just before congress adjourned, when the bill was about to come up in the senate, Senator Vandenberg objected. He even threatened to filibuster if the administration tried to pass the bill. So the senate adjourned.

At this session, the Pan-American defense bill is on the senate unanimous consent calendar. And every time it comes up, Vandenberg objects.

Meanwhile Latin American nations, not understanding the American parliamentary system by which one man sometimes can thwart the rest of congress, criticize the United States for talking Western Hemisphere defense but giving absolutely no co-operation toward it.

Note—The senate foreign relations committee also has buried the Argentine sanitary convention which permits the entry of dressed lamb from Patagonia, the Antarctic end of Argentina, where hoof and mouth disease does not exist. Ratification of this treaty would mean the purchase of only a small driblet of lamb by this country, but politically would mean a tremendous boost in Argentine friendship for the United States.

FATEFUL FIGURES

A numerological digest of the careers of Europe's strong men is going the rounds on Capitol Hill, and creating a lot of interest:

	Mussolini	Stalin	Hitler
Born	1883	1879	1889
Came to power	1922	1924	1933
Years in power	18	16	7
Age	57	61	51
Total	3880	3880	3280
Divided by two	1940	1940	1940

Note—Though this seems to be a startling coincidence, it isn't. Anyone's age added to the year of his birth naturally equalls this year, 1940. Likewise the year anyone took office plus the number of years he has spent in office equals 1940. The two together always would be twice 1940, or 3880. Next year the result will be 1941. Try it on yourself.

Evenings Out

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

PERHAPS we are selfish, but my wife and I do not enjoy taking our children to clubs, fairs or social gatherings in the evening. On rare occasions, fortified with naps in the afternoon, our little boys have acquitted themselves creditably until a late hour. We know it can be done, and that many farmer folk take their young children everywhere they go themselves.

Their children, too, grow and thrive, and get over with children's diseases younger than ours do, perhaps. But it seems to us, with lots of rest and sleep, our children will be apt to enjoy long social evenings after they are grown, when we, perhaps, are gone.

On the rare occasions when we spend an evening out, we much prefer to come home to a quiet house where the children are asleep in their own beds, rather than to carry in two or three overtired, overstuffed, overstimulated youngsters who must then be coaxed, tearfully, into their pajamas.

This matter of going or staying is largely habit. Children do right well at putting up with parents as they are. A musical or a lecture means more to us than it does to them. They would prefer a new game at home, or even a bag of candy.

My wife, who is with the house and the tots all day, needs the restful change of an occasional evening off. I needs must accompany her. We frequently slip away for an hour or two after supper. It's just our way. The children take it in their stride.

We tried attending movies with them a few times, before we had so many. Invariably the picture was almost a total loss. After several years' experience, we have come to our present plan. Our whole family goes for week-end drives and picnics, whenever possible. On such occasions the children often dictate where we go and how we spend the time. Within limits, they decide what sort of edible treat we shall enjoy.

But evenings are different. Those are for older folks. We trust we are not too unkind in keeping them, largely, for our own.

Twelve Indicted In $1,000,000 'Front Money' Fraud

FEDERAL JURY CHARGES MAILS USED IN SCHEME

Cleveland, Youngstown Men Are Named In Connection With 'Advance Fee' Racket.

(By United Press)

CLEVELAND — Twelve men were indicted by a federal grand jury on mail fraud charges today in connection with an alleged nationwide "front money" racket said to have mulched business men of $1,000,000.

The true bill named Bernard B. Gross, Chicago; Paul E. Reinhardt and C. Wayne Gould, Los Angeles; Samuel L. Lewis, Edward Schofs, Arthur L. Rose, Rowland S. Mott, Victor De Villiers, W. M. Harvey and William H. Gould, all of New York City; Carl J. Barth, Cleveland, and Edward M. Hill, Youngstown, O.

The "front money" or "advance-fee" racket has been under investigation for months by the post-office department, the securities and exchange commission and the department of justice, according to U. S. Attorney Emerich B. Freed, to whom cases from all parts of the country have been entrusted for prosecution.

The basis of the racket is the persuasion of firms and individuals to pay a multitude of advance fees on the promise that new capital would be obtained for them. The victims have been a great variety of small enterprises whose operations were unfamiliar with securities statutes.

"This is the first real break we have had in a drive to clean up a racket which has victimized honest business, particularly small business, in many parts of the country," SEC Chairman Jerome N. Frank said. "It is my hope that in the future business men will consult responsible local bankers before becoming entangled in these schemes."

Push Efforts to Raise $4,000 War Relief Fund Here

Workers in the Red Cross drive to raise $4,000 in Mansfield on Richland county's $6,000 quota for war relief, renewed their efforts this morning after a cablegram from Red Cross representative in Paris told of conditions there.

The drive opened yesterday in Mansfield and throughout the county and while no reports were made by county workers, Mansfield had subscribed $229 up to this noon. This was in volunteer subscriptions given at the chapter office and did not include contributions obtained by workers.

Wayne Chatfield Taylor, American Red Cross representative in Paris, said in a cablegram to national headquarters today that while the army in France is fighting for its life, thousands of homeless refugees from Belgium are flocking into France, already concerned with its own tragic problems.

He said they arrive on foot, by wagon, in trucks, trains and even by bicycle; that some are wounded, some sick, all hungry, terrified and exhausted. They bring with them nothing except the clothes on their backs and sometimes a few sentimental trinkets. Government agencies, Taylor said, of France and Belgium, with the help of Red Cross, are attempting to give assistance. The problem becomes more acute daily, he said, as the refugees continue to come.

D. O. Meese, general chairman of the Red Cross drive for funds, said today that several large contributions have been obtained by workers and he is certain that the drive can be finished by Saturday night.

Oil Company Shows Film on 'Ohio's Good Earth' At Rotary Meeting.

Agriculture's prominent place in contributing to the prosperity of Ohio was pictured at today's meeting of the Rotary club through the medium of color and sound films presented by the Standard Oil company.

"Ohio's Good Earth" was the title of a film which showed the diversity of farm products in this state and also the high development of the live stock industry. Modern methods of farming were also shown, as necessary to cultivation of the 23,000,000 acres of Ohio land devoted to agriculture.

John B. Coleman was program chairman for the meeting and the films were presented under direction of Fred Cassell and James VanBlarcum.

Visiting Rotarians were C. O. Long, of Ft. Wayne, Ind., and Fred E. Snedecour, Corono, Calif.

At the annual election of officers of the club, for the year starting July 1, Clifford G. Hillier was chosen as president and Robert C. Remy, vice president. Walter W. Willis was re-elected secretary-treasurer. Newly elected members of the board of directors are William C. Mead and Fred L. Tracy.

DRAW FINES

Police Raid on Residence Ends In Arrest of 5.

Four men, two of them colored, were arraigned before Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch in municipal court this morning on charges of intoxication filed after police had raided the home of Mamie Smith, 251 North Adams street, last night.

A total of eleven men, three of them colored, were taken into custody during the raid.

Police said all of them were drinking cider and a quantity of cider was confiscated. The Smith woman, colored, was charged with maintaining a disorderly house. Four of the men were charged with intoxication and the others were dismissed.

The woman was fined $75 and costs and committed to county jail until it is paid. The men were all fined $5 and costs.

Of four other men arrested on the street for intoxication and arraigned this morning only one received a fine of more than $5 and costs. He was Frank Foley, arrested on a state affidavit because he has been arrested for intoxication three times since April 18. He received a fine of $25 and costs and wos committed to county jail.

STUDIES COURSE IN AIRPLANE MECHANICS FOR SENIOR HIGH

At a meeting of the Mansfield board of education last night, Dr. John S. Hattery, vice president of the board, recommended that a course providing instruction for aviation tool makers be added to the vocational curriculum at Senior high school.

The board took no action on the suggestion, but members indicated they favored it. W. L. Miller, superintendent of schools, said he would ask the state department of education if such an arrangement is possible under the state-aid program and whether there will be federal funds available to help finance the course.

"It is almost certain that the lack of skilled tool makers and aviation mechanics will be the bottle neck in the government's air defense program, and there's no reason why boys shouldn't have the chance to learn the trade and get jobs," Dr. Hattery said.

Pupils can obtain training in automobile mechanics now at Senior high school, but there is no course that would equip them for work in aviation either as a plane builder or mechanic.

Supt. Miller said he was not certain whether instructors now employed in the high school vocational department are qualified to teach tool making and aviation mechanics.

If other instructors would have to be hired, government funds provided through some kind of subsidy must be available to pay them, he added.

CAPTURE O. S. R. FUGITIVES NEAR LEXINGTON, KY.

Armed Pair Surrenders as Police Find Them In Auto on Highway.

Two of the three inmates who escaped from the Mansfield reformatory last Tuesday were captured last night on a rural road near Lexington, Ky., an Associated Press dispatch from Lexington said today.

Kentucky authorities said the pair identified themselves as Milburn Riley, 23, Hamilton, O., and Wilbur Gruver, 21, of Marion, who were serving terms for auto theft.

Everett Collins, 18, of Warren county, third member of the group, is still at large.

An automobile stolen from near Shelby and believed to be the one which the youths used to flee south was found at Hamilton last Saturday night. The car belonged to Glenn Artz.

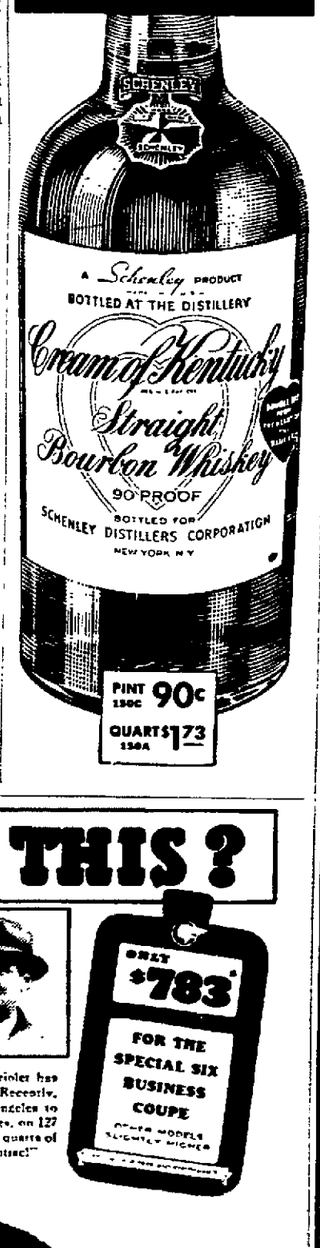

Authorities said Riley and Gruver offered no resistance when they were captured last night although they carried guns in their automobile which they said was stolen from a Hamilton garage.

RELIEF BILL CUT

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The state's April relief bill was set at $2,121,-921 today by State Welfare Directors Charles L. Sherwood, who reported that this was approximately $230,000 less than in March. Sherwood allocated $750,-000, or 35.5 per cent of the total as the state's share.

Council Expected to Settle W. 4th Paving Problems.

Definite settlement of problems growing out of the West Fourth street paving project was expected tonight when city council meets in special session.

Type of construction and city appropriations necessary to get the paving program under way are questions expected to be settled.

Drawn up last winter, plans of the state highway department call for a pavement of brick and concrete construction.

Since then, proposals have been made for an all-brick surface and one suggestion of a hot-mix" asphalt surface was made.

MORRISSON GIVES COSTUME-RECITAL

Impersonates Famous Composers at Harpsichord, Piano In Program Presented Under Auspices of Guild.

COLORFUL lighting effects plus make-up and costumes lent an authenticity to the recital given by Donald Scott-Morrisson, Napoleon, last night at the First Presbyterian church under the auspices of the Women's guild. Opening his program Mr. Morrisson played the two Scarlatti sonatas, "C Major" and "E Major" on the harpsichord.

While chatting informally, and giving biographical data on the lives of Bach Chopin, Debussy and Liszt and explaining the theme and the story of a selection, the musician sat at a make-up table on the stage and put on make-up, wigs and costumes in which he impersonated each of the famous composers. The two Bach harpsichord numbers were "Fugue in C Minor" and "Jigue in B Flat Major."

The Chopin selections at the piano were "Polonaise in C Sharp Minor," "Etude Op. 10 No. 3" and "Waltz in E Flat Major." Mr. Morrisson's Debussy numbers were "Sunken Cathedrale" and "Prelude" from "Pour Le Piano" Concluding numbers were "Liebestraum" and "Le Componella" by Liszt.

For encores he played "Waltz in E Minor" by Chopin and "Ritual Fire Dance" by de Falla.

Proceeds from the costume recital will be used for the guild, and church mision work, Mrs. D. O. Meese, general chairman in charge of the program announced.

MISS BASINGER WED IN MAY CEREMONY

Mother, Sister Disclose Marriage to Roy E. Gale at Party Last Night; Pair Will Be at Home on Second Street.

FRIENDS of Miss Janice Basinger learned of her recent marriage to Roy E. Gale when her mother and sister, Mrs. I. W. Basinger and Mrs. Paul Old, entertained with an announcement party at the latter's home, 100 Heineman boulevard, yesterday evening. When the announcement was made, Mrs. Old brought in a large Japanese parasol, filled with similar tiny ones, which she presented to the guests. Notes attached to these little parasols, revealed that the nuptials had been solemnized on May 4.

Rev. O. P. Smith read the ceremony at the Methodist church in Russell, Ky. The couple was attended by Mr. and Mrs. James Gills, jr. Mr. and Mrs. Gale took a motor trip through Kentucky and southern Ohio that week-end, and last week-end they drove to Charleston, W. Va. After June 1, they will be at home to friends at 111 West Second street.

Bridge was the diversion at four tables last evening. Prizes were won by Miss Margaret Finney, Mrs. Harold Old and Miss Virginia Williams, who presented them to the honoree. Mrs. Basinger gave her daughter a set of silver flatware, while she received a pair of blankets from her sister, and a lamp from Mrs. Charles Old. The luncheon table was centered with a miniature bride and bridegroom, and decorated with an arrangement of lilies-of-the-valley, bleeding heart and pastel tinted tapers.

The bride, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Basinger, 129 Blymyer avenue, is a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school. She is affiliated with Delta Sigma Zeta sorority and an active member of the First Presbyterian church. Mr. Gale is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Gale, 319 West Fourth street. A graduate of Massillon high school, Mr. Gale now has the Gale Display Service here.

Limited Space Drives Them Out

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Today space is at such a premium in the average home, especially where everyone works for a living, that young people have fallen into the habit of seeing their friends somewhere else.

Naturally, mother worries over Mary being whisked away in an automobile by some young man whose name she doesn't even know, and about Jane, dancing at a public dance hall or a night club which hasn't too good a reputation.

Of course, modern youngsters, to keep up with the crowd, feel they must go out in automobiles to clubs and dance, but it would be well for all parties concerned if they didn't do this seven nights in a week. Occasionally they might stay home and give their parents an introduction to their girl and boy friends.

Mother may be old-fashioned, and father's neckties subdued, and he may not be up on the latest words in slang. But mother has almost a clairvoyant instinct in sizing up girls beneath their makeup, and father knows a good dependable boy when he meets one. After the introduction, and even a few words about the weather, mother and dad, if they're tactful, will disappear and leave the youngsters to entertain themselves.

Amazing letters come to this column from young men who say they go "steady" with girls and have never been invited to their homes. They wonder why. Is there a chained lunatic kept in the closet? Is father (or mother) such a toss pot that he can't be seen? As they write to me: "I know the family hasn't any money, but why can't I see what kind of folks she's got? I want to know what kind of a family I'm marrying into. I don't care if it's shabby, and Mom and Dad haven't had advantages, but I want to see what the outfit is like."

To youngsters who like to take the bit in their teeth, and go the limit while the flash of youth lasts, the foregoing doesn't apply. But if you're normal and want a little home of your own—husband, children—don't meet the boy friend on the curbstone week after week month after month. Naturally, if his intentions are SERIOUS, he wants to know what kind of a family you come from. He'd like to meet mother and dad, and see how they compare with his own family.

Hitch-Hiking Dangerous Pastime

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

"DEAR Doctor Myers. It is obvious that I read your column, and it is also obvious that I place enough value on its contents to spend my time reading it, and in the main agree with its contents. But you are off on the enclosed, causing one to wonder what your experience has been.

"Brother, do you not know that to the average man and woman the joy of giving someone a lift is the most enjoyable thing about driving and owning a car? Just where can one experience greater satisfaction than to know that one has helped someone to make progress? . . .

"Should you find time to acknowledge this, I would get some of the same feeling I get when I pick up some of the finest fellows I have ever met."

Here is the statement of mine to which he refers: "In my humble judgment, hitch-hiking, except in cases of distress, is morally and economically wrong. In many states it is illegal. I'd rather have a child of mine begging for bread than for a ride. He would be less of a public nuisance."

I wrote this correspondent that I sincerely believed that if one of my sons or I had the privilege to take a ride with him in his car, we would have a profitable journey: that I admired his generous spirit but was not swayed from my former statement by his argument; that, moreover, I hoped to quote from his letter and make a few comments on it in this column. The comments follow.

I would certainly agree with this critic that great joys come from sharing and that about the greatest satisfaction one can experience is "to know that one has helped someone to make progress." I disagree, however, that by encouraging hitch-hiking we can win this satisfaction without contributing to the inconvenience of some persons and the delinquency of others.

Did the Same Thing.

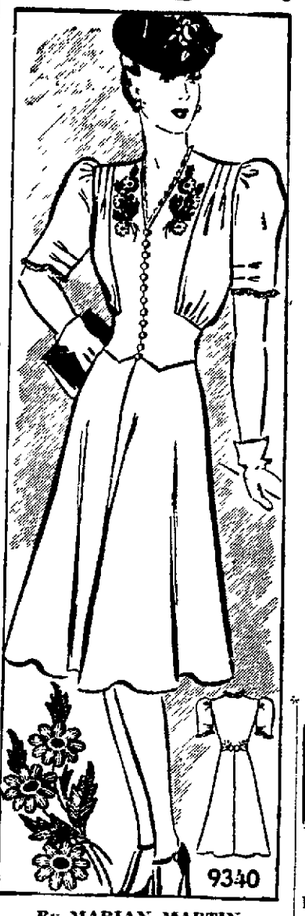

Prompted by the same motives this man reveals, I used to pick up hitch-hikers and never had any unhappy experiences with them. But I have known others who have had. Besides, hitch-hikers impede traffic and add to accidents. Business concerns hardly would post a "no rider" sign on their trucks nor would state legislatures declare hitch-hiking illegal if there were not good reasons.

Should one share just for one's own satisfaction? Think of the thousands of children who have been spoiled, even ruined, because their parents got so much satisfaction from excessive generosity, even self-sacrifice. Consider the paupers who have been made through indiscriminate giving by those who give only for the joy of giving. Think of the generous children who give away all their parents have.

Therefore, I believe we parents owe it to our children to prevail on them not to thumb for a ride and we owe it to all children not to encourage hitch-hiking in anybody.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

He said in icy accents:

"What do you suggest?"

Lillian fairly leaped into the breach.

"Let me suggest!" she said gaily. "Mrs. Graham's autumn garden is distinctly worth a visit—Nancy, I'll take you and Mr. Redfield out after the rehearsal's over But suppose the rest of you come out with me now while these other unlucky devils go through their motions. Phil darling!" she smiled saucily up at him. "do you see this button?"—she indicated a push button in a panel of the wall—"Well! when you're ready for us to come back, just ring that, three short ones and one long. Katie'll hear it in the kitchen, and I'll stop on the way out and tell her that when she hears that signal, she's to come flying out and summon us Is that arrangement satisfactory?"

"I cannot think of anything better,' Mr Veritzen said grimly.

"Thank you, sweetheart!" She wafted him an airy kiss, and turned to the group of players whose faces were turned toward the great impresario.

"Come along folks," she caroled. "We're going places Remember, Phil, three short and one long will propel Katie from the kitchen as if she were a torpedo."

"I'll remember," he said crisply, and, following Lillian, the members of the cast trooped out of the room, leaving in the library Olina seated at her harp, Marv in the position she was to occupy during the colloquy to come. Nancy Carew and Norman Redfield looking to me for directions, Philip Veritzen looking at me with suppressed savagery in his eyes, and myself outwardly unperturbed, inwardly much upset.

"If you will just sit here, Miss Carew," I said, indicating her chair, and if you, Mr. Redfield, will stand right here"—I stepped to the position myself—"I will give you the interpolated lines I have written in for you They really are nothing to remember, as you will see."

I handed them the lines I had prepared, and as their practiced eyes ran over them I saw them nod in acquiescence to what I had just said Then I turned to Philip Veritzen, thankful that my quaking knees did not show.

"Might I suggest?" I asked sweetly, "that they all simply read their parts casually, instead of trying to get any dramatic feeling into the words. That can come later."

"I think that is an admirable suggestion," he said, and then becoming suddenly the stage director, he gave a crisp direction.

"Miss Carew," he said, "you open this bit of dialogue. Will you begin, and will the rest of you follow in the turn indicated by Mrs. Graham?"

For the next few minutes the four players went over their bits of dialogue while Olina struck an occasional idle chord on her harp as the "business" demanded.

"That will do very nicely for now," he said "When the whole play is rehearsed, we will be better able to judge this section of it."

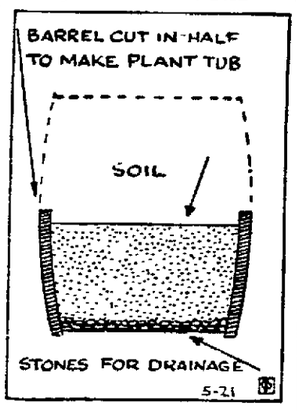

With an imperturbable face, he walked to the push button Lillian had indicated and put his finger on it.

"Three short and one long, is that it?" he asked.

Garden Graph

By DEAN HALLIDAY

TUB GARDENING

Trees roses are gaining in popularity and for those lovers of roses who have only a limited space for gardening, growing them in tubs is suggested. The planted tubs can be used to decorate the terrace or as accent points to frame a garden entrance.

As shown in the Garden-Graph, practical as well as attractive planting tubs can be made from a barrel which has been sawed in half. The tubs should have at least four drainage holes bored in the bottom and a layer of stones placed over these holes to facilitate drainage. The tubs can be painted a dark green color, with the hoops painted black or a color to match other terrace or garden furniture. Paint the tubs on the outside only.

When trees roses are planted in tubs it makes it quite easy to move them inside for protection during the winter.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, May 22.

A day of progress and opportunity for much surprising productive work is read from the prevailing mutual aspects. This may operate in business as well as in all pertaining to writings, publishing, publicity and promotional enterprises. Satisfactory new contracts are in sight, with promotion and the friendly support of those in prestige and power. Cultivate these and work with groups of exalted ambitions. March definitely upon high goals.

Those whose birthday it is are assured of a year of definite opportunity for growth and expansion, especially in all sorts of business or employment in which sharp mentality are required. Writing, publishing, promotions, should attract the generous support of capital or other solid endorsement of those in standing. Seek these, but reach for high objectives, in which social welfare or public good are stressed. Propitious for renewing contracts and at enhanced profit and personal popularity.

A child born on this day may have exceptional talent in a professional line, legal, literary or financial, with much prospect of progress and preferment at the hands of those in place and power.

Quick, Emergency Manicure

By MME. QUI VIVE

We're all for professional treatments of the finger nails; they can't be beaten if the operator knows her business, takes her time and uses her conscience. The trouble with the home cleanup is that the left hand never seems to know what it is doing when it manicures the right one But there are emergencies that must be met.

Get out the manicure kit, which should include the needle-point scissors, emery boards, orangewood stick, long flexible steel file, nail white pencil, cuticle cream, polish to put on the highlights.

Don't wash your hands. The first step is to file the nails. Sweep from sides to center, forming a point, then nip off the point until you have a pleasing oval edge. Run the orangewood stick under the nail eaves, give a finish with the emery board. Then have a soapy scrubbing, using a hand brush. Have the water hot to soften the cuticle.

• • •

Put a drop of olive oil on each nail. Use the orangewood stick to work up the cuticle and to detach the flesh from the nail base. If you rout out hangnails snip them off with the curved scissors pointing toward the edge of your pretty claws. Don't make a wound. Infections may arrive to torment you. If by chance you cut the flesh, touch the wound with alcohol.

Be gentle at the base of the nail, which is soft. Treating that portion roughly will injure the delicate underlying matrix, may produce a new nail that is ridged or spotted. Don't clip away the cuticle there. That is a bad practice, causing the flesh to bank up and thicken. If there are hard spots in the corners, snip 'em out. But be gentle.

• • •

Dip the nail white pencil in water, run it under the nail eaves, form a clearcut line. You can keep this beauty aid pointed and workable by slipping it into your pencil sharpener.

Next, a thorough scrubbing with soap suds and a brush to remove the oil. If oil remains, you'll have trouble with your polish; it will go patchy. Rinse away the soap. Casual rinsing is responsible for rough, red hands.

When applying the rosy glint, sweep the camel's hair brush from base to nail tip. Don't put on a heavy application; two thin ones give a better effect and will wear longer. Finish by putting a few drops of your favorite perfume on the backs of your hands.

HOSPITAL TESTS REVEAL GREAT DISCOVERY FOR CONSTIPATION

At last—here's an ideal, "daily" treatment for constipation with its headaches, mental dullness, fatigue and sallow skin.

Tests in a world-famous hospital have proved a "little daily dose" of Kruschen (world-famous formula, now at last obtainable in pleasant tasting "bubbling" form) actually produces nature's own gentle, pleasant, "daily" bowel movements by keeping the waste matter in the colon moist, soft and easy to expel.

Scientists report: "Kruschen can be taken for years without having to increase the dose." Also it has a mild Antacid and Kidney Stimulant. Gives you MORE for your money, too! A jar that costs only a trifle lasts for WEEKS. Over 245,000,000 jars have been sold thruout the world. Kruschen MUST be good—it MUST do the work! Made in U. S. A.

Now Comes in Pleasant Tasting "Bubbling" Form!

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

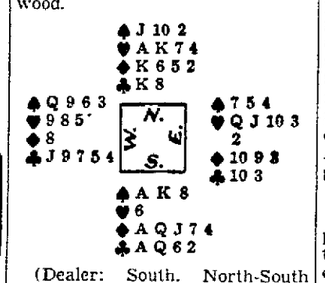

BY

Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

THE BARCLAY CONVENTION

As soon as Horace M. Byrnes of Pennsylvania presented his improvement on the Blackwood convention, whereby 4-Clubs became the ace asking call instead of 4-No Trumps, a series of experiments began It culminated in the development of an extension of the same principle, which its original devotees have now named "The Barclay Convention." In simplest terms, it is merely this: When partners' bidding has clearly agreed upon the declaration, the ace-asking call is the very lowest bid possible which could not possibly have a natural meaning, the responses being on an ascending scale, as in the case of the Blackwood.

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

Bidding on this deal, by the users of the Blackwood convention, would go thus:

South	1♠	2♣	4 NT	6♦
North	1♥	3♦	5♦

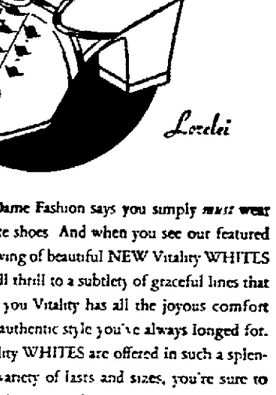

South could not afford to ask about kings with 5-No Trumps, because a response of 6-Hearts, showing two kings, would automatically force the bidding above 6-Diamonds. Using the new "Barclay Convention," the bidding would be:

South	1♠	2♣	3♠	4♥	7♦
North	1♥	3♦	4♣	5♦

After the 3-Diamonds guarantees game and shows the fit of the hands. South invites slam with the lowest bid which cannot be misunderstood. Since 3-Hearts might indicate a fit for North's hearts, 3-Spades is the lowest safe slam call. To this, 3-No Trumps would show no aces, 4-Clubs one, so that was bid

The cheapest next bid, which is not the agreed declaration, is the king asking call. Since 4-Diamonds is the agreed suit, 4-Hearts is the king-asker. North would show none with 4-Spades, one with 4-No Trumps, two with 5-Clubs, three with 5-Diamonds, the last being what he used. South now knows about the grand slam, so bids it without a qualm.

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer: West. North-South ulnerable.)

How should South play for 5-Spades, against a lead of the club K?

Simple Changes Add To Taste

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

Here's a spring parade of food ideas, all fresh and bright, just waiting to be invited into your kitchen.

Applesauce is fine when liberally sprinkled with caraway seeds, and baked apples take kindly to caraway, too. Creamed cheese mixed with caraway makes a spread to remember.

To give a new tang to French dressing, add a dab of prepared mustard. Watch the green grocers and the fields for the first tender shoots of dandelion, they are wonderful in salads with well-peppered French dressing. String beans take on that handsome spring look and a new taste when creamed with a little chopped pimiento and a dash of nutmeg. Whole kernel corn can be tricked out with chopped ripe olives and a dusting of gay paprika. Serve potato soup, and the right thing by using new scallions in it, seasoning it with a little fresh nutmeg. For those coolish days, warm up with a tall glass of hot tea served with a slice of lemon stuck wth plump cloves. A cinnamon stick with lemon is good in hot tea, too.

New Taste Thrill.

How about a new taste thrill in pie crusts? For a surprise serve the family an apple pie with a cheese pastry crust. Cut one and one-half cups grated American cheese into two-thirds cup shortening Cut into this two and one-half cups sifted flour mixed with one-half teaspoon salt Use enough cold water, about one-third cup, to make it hold together.

Save liquor left from sweet pickles for delicious pickled beets, Heat the pickle liquor to boiling point, then pour it over the cooked skinned and sliced beets. Beets, if small, may be left whole. Cool, then chill. Keep in refrigerator in screw cap jar.

For a real health salad, toss shredded cabbage, fresh orange sections and seedless raisins with French dressing. Start off the meal with a tangy fruit cup. Add finely-chopped crystalized ginger to diced pineapple, orange sections and seedless green grapes.

Lime Dressing.

Lime French Dressing is a new note for fruit salad. Make it with three-fourths teaspoon salt, tablespoon powdered sugar, one-half teaspoon paprika, one-fourth cup lime juice and one-half cup salad oil. Mix salt, sugar and paprika in deep bowl or bottle. Add oil, beating vigorously until the consistency of cream. Makes three-fourths cup dressing Use immediately, as emulsion breaks quickly.

Latest "horn of plenty"—if it's plenty of flavor you're looking for—are rosy cornucopias of juicy ham wrapped around dainty, canned mushrooms and served hot from the grill. To serve six, have boiled ham cut into not too thin slices, allowing one for each serving. Drain liquid from four-ounce can of mushrooms and cover slices of ham. Top with finger-length piece of cheese. Roll into cornucopia shape, fasten with toothpick. Grill in hot oven or under broiler heat until cheese begins to melt. Serve immediately. Six portions.

As fast as the cold frames or hot beds become available, they may be utilized for sowing seeds of biennial and perennial flowers to produce plants for use in the borders this fall.

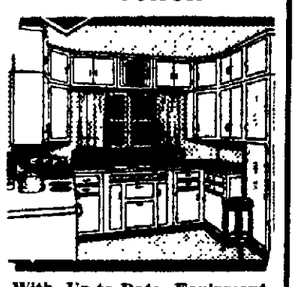

Wife Preservers!

If you are going to be married this summer, why not ask "his" mother to give you a notebook filled with her son's favorite recipes, and learn to make the dishes? It may save you from that familiar, "not as good as mother used to make" remark

A gourd vine, if well nourished and planted where it will receive plenty of sunshine, will soon conceal the boundary fence, a tangle of brush or an unsightly rubbish pile.

PLANE MUSEUM, NOTED CAVE ON TOUR ITINERARY

Two Richland County Essay Winners to See Famous Historical Spots.

When the two Richland county winners of the "Let's Explore Ohio" contest leave for their own tour of the state, they will, among other places, visit Old Man's Cave in Hocking county and the Army Aeronautical museum at Wright field, Dayton.

This essay contest which is being sponsored by The News-Journal and the Standard Oil company of Ohio, closes May 28, and all essays must be sent to the editor of The News-Journal by that time.

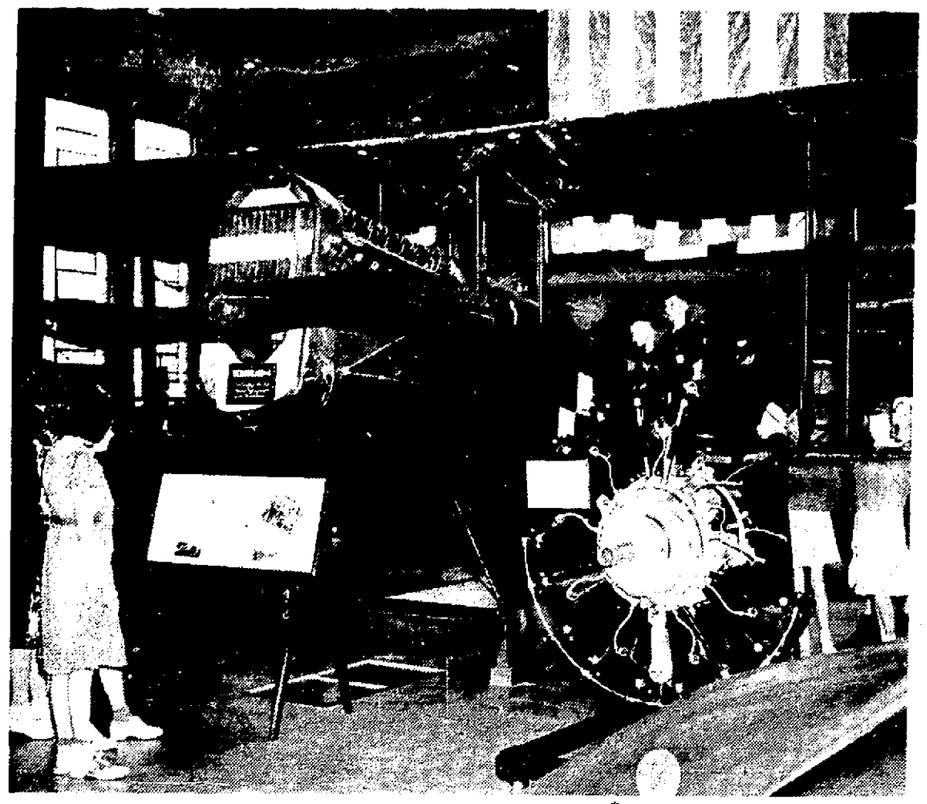

To enter merely write a letter of 100 words or more on the subject "The Most Interesting Spot in Ohio." The contest is open to any boy or girl between the ages of 12 and 15, inclusive, except children of parents working for The News-Journal or the Standard Oil company of Ohio.

During the trip which covers 1,000 miles, the two fortunate children, along with other winners in the state, will leave Columbus, the starting point, for Dayton, where the first night will be spent. While in Dayton the Explorers, as the group will be called, will be taken on a tour of the Army Aeronautical museum at Wright Field and will visit the Newcom Tavern, Dayton's oldest building, and now a historical museum, and the home of Paul Laurence Dunbar, famous Negro poet.

The Hocking County state parks, most spectacular in Ohio, a drive along the Ohio River, a visit to Marietta and to Schoenbrunn, near New Philadelphia, will feature the third and fourth days of the trip around the state.

Old Man's Cave, Ash Cave, Rock House and other works of nature, together with forests and rushing streams, are a part of the beauty of Hocking county. A forest ranger will be the guide through these spots and will tell the story of the particular points they will visit.

Here Are Spots on 'Let's Explore Ohio' Tour

Mayor Seeks End To Chicago Milk Delivery Strike

CHICAGO — (INS) — City officials stepped into Chicago's milk strike today with an announcement that Mayor Edward J. Kelly would confer with State's Attorney Thomas Courtney to determine how the controversy can be settled.

Today marked the third day of the second strike of AFL milk wagon drivers within three weeks. As in the first strike, begun May 1 and ended two days later under a truce calling for negotiations, the drivers are resisting efforts of major associated dealers to reduce their basic weekly pay from $48 to $30. Negotiations started after the original strike ended without result last Saturday.

During the first two days of the current strike, it was estimated at least 75 per cent of the normal Chicago milk supply was cut off, and the mayor has taken the position the situation creates an emergency which may call for action by the city.

Farmers in the Chicago milkshed, faced with losses placed at $60,000 for each day of the strike, entered into an agreement with the striking drivers under which the farmers and drivers hoped to restore at least 50 per cent of normal milk deliveries. Under the plan dairy farmers will supply milk direct to the union, and the union will arrange for its pasteurization and distribution.

GRAND JURY CALLED MAY 31

BUCYRUS—The Crawford county grand jury will meet here May 31 and June 1, it was announced today by Prosecutor Leo J. Scanlon and Common Pleas Judge Clarence U. Ahl. Only two cases are on file at present.

Grand jurors include: Ralph Sayre, Emma Peterman, Mary Wallace and Georgetta Hessenbauer of Galion; E. B. White and F. L. Bogan of near Crestline; Viola Nelson, Pearson Linn and Scott McDonald of Bucyrus; Anna Wechter of near New Washington, Arno Assenheimer and Michael Gaebelt of near Bucyrus; Morris Knisely of North Robinson; Mrs. W. H. Songer of Sulphur Springs, and Robert Reagle of Chatfield.

STAYS IN PARIS

NEW LONDON—Miss Theodate Johnson, daughter of Attorney and Mrs. Homer H. Johnson of New London and Cleveland, will remain at her residence in Paris, France, for the duration of the war, where she will offer her services as a nurse.

In a cable sent to her parents here, Miss Johnson states that thousands of Belgian refugees are pouring into Paris.

GIVEN FINES

ASHLAND—Charged with excessive speed on the highway, Everett Shellhorn, Galion truck driver was fined $25 and costs with $15 of the fine suspended, on being arraigned before Justice of the Peace R. R. Teeter here.

Also fined for excessive speed was Emerson H. Bostwick of Cleveland. He was fined $10 and costs by Teeter.

ATTEND SESSION

Mansfield Women to Take Part in Galion Church Program.

A number of Mansfield women are expected to attend an all-day meeting of the women's department of the Ohio Council of Churches at the First Methodist church in Galion tomorrow.

Included among the speakers will be Mrs. C. L. Chase of the First Presbyterian church here.

The meeting opens at 10 a. m. and is expected to be attended from all denominations from throughout the state. Mrs. Ruth Moughery Worrell of Columbus will preside.

WINS VERDICT

BUCYRUS—A jury in common pleas court here today had returned a verdict for $2,000 in favor of James Teat of Galion in his $20,000 alienation of affections action against Vernon Stiner, also of Galion.

Teat charged that Stiner had alienated the affections of his wife, resulting in her divorce last year. The trial lasted three days.

Why Let Yourself Get Constipated?

Why endure those dull headachy days due to constipation, plus the inevitable trips to the medicine chest, if you can avoid both by getting at the cause of the trouble?

If your constipation, like that of millions, is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, the "better way" is to eat Kellogg's All-Bran.

This crunchy toasted breakfast cereal is the ounce of prevention that's worth a pound of emergency relief. It helps you not only to get regular but to keep regular, day after day and month after month, by the pleasantest means you ever knew.

Eat Kellogg's All-Bran regularly, drink plenty of water, and see if you don't forget all about constipation. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

2 MORE HOMES

May Building Valuations Are Boosted to $161,950.

May building valuations were boosted to $161,950 today with the issuance at City Hall of permits totaling $8,000 for the construction of two more new residences.

They went to Christ Baloi, Lexington avenue road, for the construction of a $4,000 home at 46 Chilton avenue, and William G. Auer, 173 Ausdale avenue, who will build a $4,000 residence at 26 Grasmere avenue.

TAX RECEIPTS REFLECT SHARP BUSINESS GAIN

Sales Revenue In Mansfield Reveals 42.3 Per Cent Increase In April.

Paced by a 42.3 per cent gain in sales tax receipts, reflecting a sharp spring upturn in mercantile business, the April business survey of the Chamber of Commerce, released today, showed business conditions generally improving in Mansfield.

The increases ranged from the 42.3 per cent mark in sales tax receipts to 3.4 per cent in mercantile employment.

Only one decrease was shown. Building valuations dropped from $488,865 for April last year to $193,530 last month. The drop is explained by the fact that permits were included in the 1939 figures for one of the two new junior high schools.

Sales tax receipts, barometer for mercantile sales shot up to $55,709 for April, nearly $20,000 above the $39,145 obtained from the state tax in the corresponding period last year.

Carloadings bounced up 26 per cent, a total of 3,443 inbound and outbound cars loaded last month as against 2,733 cars during the same period in 1939.

A 14.7 per cent gain was registered in receipts at the Mansfield postoffice for the month. Total receipts in April were listed at $35,640, more than $4,000 ahead of the $31,050 in April 1939.

More Bus Passengers.

Bus passengers carried by the Mansfield Rapid Transit company continued to show an increase, a 12 per cent gain shown for April. The company's figures showed a total of 172,425 paid passengers last month against 153,935 in April last year.

Industrial employment was up 6.6 per cent last month as compared with April 1939 while mercantile employment showed a 3.4 per cent gain. The Chamber's report showed a total of 11,579 persons on Mansfield payrolls in April as against 10,903 a year ago. It listed 9,871 in industry and 1,708 in mercantile employment.

Bank clearings for the month were up six per cent over a year ago and new car sales showed a three per cent increase.

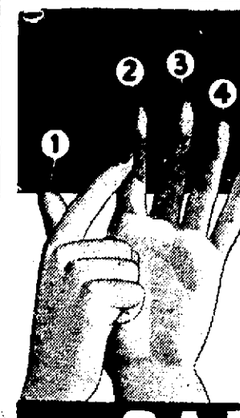

San Juan Begins Campaign Against Auto Horn Blasts

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico—(INS)—Tip for motorists—don't sound your horn in San Juan, largest city in the U. S. Territory of Puerto Rico.

Irked by the honking of automobile horns, San Juan civic leaders have opened a campaign to make San Juan the "City of Silent Motorists." The move has the backing of insular officials, who promise stiff penalties to offenders if the campaign fails to halt the noise.

Stickers urging participation in the drive are being displayed on automobile windows.

"No abuse su klaxon," the stickers read. That in English, means "Don't abuse your horn."
